FIND BODY DIXMUDE COMMANDER

FINALLY PROVE GIANT DIRIGIBLE LOST IN WATER

Fishermen Near Sciacca, Sicily, Haul In Body of French Officer In Charge of Missing Aircraft.

(Associated Press.)

PARIS, Dec. 28.—An official announcement today said that the dirigible Dixmude had been lost at sea.

The body of Lieutenant Grenadan, commander of the missing dirigible Dixmude has been found, it was officially announced this morning by fishermen, six miles from land off Sciacca, Sicily.

Its discovery was reported by the Italian maritime authorities to the French naval attache at Rome.

The receipt of a telegram from the French naval attache in Rome announcing that the body of Lieutenant Grenadan, commander of the missing dirigible, has been found in Sicilian waters, caused all hopes of the safety of the Dixmude to be abandoned These hopes had flared up last evening on receipt of reports that the balloon had been seen floating helplessly over the Sahara desert.

The Rome advices convinced officials there could be no possible doubt as to the identity of the body picked up, as Lieutenant Grenadan had an identification tag on his wrist.

Found by Fishermen.

Italian fishermen hauling in their nets at the end of their day's task last night brought the body to the surface. After it had been extricated from the meshes, it was found to be that of a French naval officer in full uniform.

It was rushed to Girgenti, a small cove near Sciacca, on the southwestern shore of Sicily.

Orders were immediately telegraphed to the naval base at Toulon to dispatch all available light speedy craft to Sicilian waters to continue the search for bodies from the illfated airship.

The ministry of marine has refrained from giving orders as yet to discontinue the search of the African desert for traces of the dirigible. The combing of the Mediterranean, however, between Sicily and the coast of Northern Africa will be the foremost branch of the search in the immediate future.

May Have Jumped.

It is surmised that Lieutenant Grenadan, when he realized the dirigible was lost, may have instructed his men to jump with their parachutes and that he decided to remain on board the ship, which might have stayed aloft several hours, the commander going down with her

The Dixmude had fifty officers and men on board when she left the Guers-Pierrefeu airdome near Marseilles on December 18 for a seventy-two hour cruise She flew across the Mediterranean and over Algeria and Tunisia to the edge of the desert of Sahara and then turned towards home She was last heard from directly on Friday, December 21, at 8 p. m.

The Dixmude, a Zeppelin rigid airship, was built in Germany during the war and turned over to France on reparations account.

No Other Bodies Found.

ROME, Dec 28.—A message received by the minister of marine from Sciacca confirming the news of the identification of the body of the Dixmude's commander, says a thorough general search along the coast nearby has as yet yielded no trace of any other body or of any aeronautical material.

CRUCIAL TEST FOR DEMOCRACY

Holmes Warns Lawyers That "Seeds of Dissension Have Been Planted In America and About to Take Root."

UNSELFISH LEADERS NEED OF THE HOUR

Head of State Bar Association Defends American Court System—Says Constitution Has Brought Power and Prosperity.

Sounding a warning to Nebraska attorneys attending the annual convention of the Nebraska Bar association at the Lincoln hotel, Former District Judge E. P. Holmes, president of the association, in the opening address Friday afternoon, declared taht "seeds of dissension and ideas of government foreign to the American genius have been planted in America and are about to take root" He said further that "only constant effort and untiring zeal can prevent their spread until they endanger the mighty fabric of government of the people, for the people, by the people."

Tracing briefly the history of the rise and fall of ancient democracies and declaring that treaties and agreements of every character between nations have always been endangered by the "lust of conquest," and that weakness and wealth have ever been the prey of force and greed, Judge Holmes said that to prevent the victory of these powers of darkness over the principles of our constitutional freedom calls for the highest type of devotion and puts our democracy to a vigorous and crucial test.

"At this time the constitution is being assailed on all hands," the speaker continued, asserting at the same time that our institutions are being decried as fundamentally wrong. He said further that instead of representative government, demand is being made for the substitution of popular decision. The initiative, the referendum, the recall are constantly being urged as the rallying points of classes not in full accord with the principles of our form of government, with a resultant weakening of those forces which can alone perpetuate our liberty.

Need Loyal Statesman.

"What is now required above all else," the speaker declared, "is the statesman, the unselfish leader, the loyal devoted American who stands without reservation for our institutions, and is bold enough to so declare; who yields complete fealty to the principles our fathers established, and who is inspired by the same hope and confidence that inspired them."

Answering critics who have charged that the constitution is "obsolete and denies equal justice to all men," Judge Holmes said that the constitution striking as it does the happy medium "without impairing the just and necessary powers of government on the one hand," while on the other "it leaves to the citizen the largest possible measure of individual freedom and action," is worthy of the deepest study and veneration of all mankind. The speaker declared the "conviction that in the maintenance of this just balance the hope of our democratic society lies."

Touching briefly the proposal of learned jurists to substitute for the present system of court practice in America, the plan of courts in England, Mr Holmes answered the charge that the alleged increase in crime in the United States is due to

MUNGER TELLS OF FOREIGN COURTS

Federal Judge Describes Bar Proceedings As Seen In Many Countries.

Says Customs May Differ Greatly But Object Of All Is Justice.

Though procedure in the courts of Japan, India, Italy, England and other widely separated countries may vary as much as the nations themselves, the object of all is justice, and that object is usually attained, declared Federal Judge T. C. Munger Friday afternoon in his address on "A Visitor's Impression of Foreign Courts," before a meeting of the Nebraska Bar association.

Besides the places named, Judge Munger told of experiences in the Philippine islands, at the Tribunal of Venice, in Vienna, and at many of the London courts. The jury system generally prevails, he said, but even in criminal cases, a majority verdict is accepted, and the rules governing all procedure are usually more liberal than in the United States.

Judge Munger began his observations with the district court of Kobe, Japan, a city about the size of St. Louis.

"The attorneys at the bar and the spectators presented the typical appearance of any court room. They enjoyed the sallies of witty answers, or listlessly heard the tedious details The procedure is the same as may be found in any continental European court, and follows in general the code of Napoleon."

At a drawn out trial in the Tribunal of Venice, Judge Munger remarked, some of the judges obeyed their natural impulses and went to sleep. But after all the evidence had been heard, and the two men convicted to two years and twenty months, the time consumed was only a little over an hour.

The emotional appeal is not overlooked by French attorneys, and all of their art of dramatic and graphic presentation, of sarcasm, and appeal to doubt is used. The questioning is direct, and the judge is not embarassed by any provision that the prisoner can not be made to testify against himself. The decision is not long in coming from the judges, who confer together for a moment, and on its announcement, the defeated advocate, "with a gesture of disgust not unknown in other courts, passes out of the room, muttering"

Courts of England.

Judge Munger gave the most of his attention to the courts of England. He spent a dozen days there in attendance on tribunals ranging from the House of Lords through the courts of civil and criminal appeals, the King's Bench division, the Chancery courts, the sessions at Old Bailey and at the courts of the shire towns of London

Trouble in selecting juries is a rare experience; jurymen are practically never challenged by a counsel, and the work of empanelling and swearing in a jury usually takes no more than three to five minutes It is often possible for one jury to try five or six cases a day, as usually they do not leave the jury box before giving a decision.

Courtesy and conversational tones are the rule among all officials and counsels at hte court. There are no oratorical efforts there, and even if a counsel wishes to suggest that a witness is lying, he does it in the most polite way possible, and will probably beg his pardon afterwards

The shire courts of London were particularly attractive to Judge Munger during his visit there, and in his address to the bar association, he reviewed a number of the cases he witnessed. The simplicity and the constant striving for justice seemed to him noteworthy.

A prisoner testifying for himself in a larceny case voiced the universal respect for the courts when he said "I thought too much of my neck to shoot"

In the criminal court of appeals, a good half of the time is taken up with deciding whether or not the appeal should be allowed, and if allowed, the case is review at a furious rate, but in a time which would be entirely practicable in the United States if legislatures would allow it.

MAN CONFESSES SLAYING WOMAN

An Alleged World War Veteran Confesses To New York Crime.

NEW YORK, Dec. 28 —Captured on the tip of a keen-eyed employment agent, Frank Benner, alias Collins and Carleton, claiming to be a war veteran, yesterday was alleged by the police to have confessed that he assaulted and murdered Miss Estelle Phillips in this city last October and that three weeks ago he attacked Mrs. May Mitchell, a nurse, in a hospital in the Chestnut hills section of Philadelphia, torturing her so that she is still an invalid.

Detectives were trying to connect their prisoner with the murder and mutilation of pretty Ream Hoxie, 17, in New York in February, 1920, and with similar crimes reported in half a dozenn cities by a man answering the prisoner's general description.

"Maybe it was the war pu tsuch ideas into my head," Beaner was alleged to have declared at the end of a frank, unemotional confession. "I get wild, like a maniac."

He is a stocky, powerful man, a chef, who since the war has worked in many hospitals and on ocean passenger ships.

Pool to Recognize Apportionment of G. O. P. Committee

Secrefary of State Pool will recognize the apportionment made by the republican national committee, allowing Nebraska nineteen delegates in the national convention at Cleveland instead of sixteen as heretofore, on the basis of seven delegates to be elected at large from the entire state, and two from each congressional district.

The Nebraska presidential primary law says that four delegates shall be chosen from the state at large and the remainder shall be equally divided among the different congressional districts. As no equal division can be made in the manner indicated, Secretary Pool will stretch the law sufficiently to have the three additional delegates chosen at large.

Over this part of the g .o. p. primary ballot the heading will read "Vote for seven" instead of "Vote for four." In each congressional district, two will be elected, the same as in former years.

PLAN HOT TIME FOR VIOLATORS

Federal And State Prosecutors to Co-operate In Dealing With Those Who Disregard Liquor Laws.

PENALTY IN DOUBLE DOSES IN PROSPECT

Prison Sentences May Be Imposed Upon Those Who Conspire to Violate Volstead Act Within State of Nebraska.

A special meeting of the county attorneys, who are attending the Nebraska bar association meeting here together with Attorney General Spillman and District Attorney J. C. Kinsler of Omaha, was called for Friday afternoon for the purpose of working out a definite program of co-operation in the enforcement of prohibition laws.

Mr. Kinsler, who is promoting the movement, stated this morning that it was not that there had been any lack of co-operation up to date, but the fact that the practice of ignoring the law so far as liquor is concerned has been and is a serious problem which must be attended to with an iron hand by every county, state and federal authority.

The punishment of these offenders has been fairly heavy in all courts but it is now the plan to give violators a double barreled treatment, which it is hoped will have a lasting effect. The county and state will bring charges against the offenders and the punishment will be meted out when convictions are secured. Following this the federal government will bring charges against the offender where the circumstances justify the action.

In this manner the rum runner or moonshinner will be made to realize that the business is doubly dangerous, Mr. Kinsler pointed out.

Mr. Kinsler is also promoting a plan whereby any alien violating the criminal laws of the country will be subjected to deportation He has brought this plan to the attention of several of Nebraska's congressmen with the hope that some action may be taken.

This movement is directed mainly toward prohibition violators, three-fourths of whom are aliens, Mr. Kinsler said. This, however, applies mainly to the larger cities, where the foreign element is extremely large

NO CHANGE MADE IN PAYMENT PLAN

Architect Goodhue to Be Compensated On Old Basis For Present.

Not Known How Long It Will Take To Complete State Capito..

No decision was reached by the state capitol commission, at its meeting on Thursday, as to changing from the salary contract with Architect B G. Goodhue to the alternative percentage contract, which it has the option of doing within five years from November, 1920. The committee to whom the matter was referred a month ago, of which W .W. Head is chairman, was authorized to continue its investigatoin and report later. Mr. Head was not present Thursday.

Whether the change will be made depends on the probable length of time required to complete the building, and this in turn hinges largely on the cost of building materials in commission will probably not let a the immediate future. The capitol contract for the second, or interior, section until after the next legislature meets in 1925 an dacts upon the question of an additional appropriation. The probable cost is now figured at upwards of $7,000,000. Only $5,000,000 of this has been provided for.

The commission on Thursday decided to use Maine granite for the steps of of the main entrance on the north ,instead of the darker Minnesota stone similar to the base course in the exterior walls. This will cost $6,000 more. The change was recommended by Architect Goodhue.

Nothing has been done as yet in regard to providing more imposing entrances on the east and west, for which alternative plans requested by the commission last spring have been furnished by the architect. Governor Bryan is favorably inclined toward this proposal, which would give the new capitol a much better appearance when approached on J street from either direction.

State Officials May Be Called Upon to Testify At Public Hearings.

No definite information as to why the United States good roads bureau has not made payment of $241,000 in road contractors' claims, approved by the state highway department of Nebraska and turned over to federal engineers at different times during the past eight months wa scontained in a telegram received Friday morning by Secretary Wilkins of the state senate's 9 investigating committee, from somebody at Washington named McDonald.

Out behalf of the committee, Mr. Wilkins wired Thursday to Chief George H. Thomas of the government bureau asking for an explanation of the long delay. The message which came back was as follows:

"George Wilkins, Secretary Senate Committee. Lincoln: With reference to your telegram 27th in regard to federal vouchers on road contracts in Nebraska, we are making complete investigation of whole matter. Representative from this office now working with district engineer, Omaha. Suggest you keep in touch with that office. "M'DONALD."

The Omaha Bee, which has been trying to fasten the blame for nonpayment of contractors' claims upon the state administration, publishes a statement from J. C., Wonders, federal district engineer at Omaha, that the government is paying out money "as fast as vouchers are... received and checked for completed and approved construction projects."

Slow In Checking Claims.

Nobody disputes this statement, but the whole trouble appears to be that vouchers are not checked by the federal engineers and sent in to Washington for payment as fast as they should be. The federal engineers are reported to be short of help for this purpose.

The investigating committee spent Thursday afternoon checking over the records of the state highway department, and Friday its members were going over the accounts of the finance department at the capitol in order to trace road vouchers and expenditures.

"Are you going to communicate with the district engineer's office at Omaha?" was asked of Senator Wilkins.

"We have already done so," he responded.

"Since you received the telegram from Washington?"

"No, before that."

Still Up in the Air.

If the committee had been able to get satisfactory information from the district engineer's office, it doubtless would not have gone to the trouble of wiring to Washington. Mr. Wilkins did not say this, but the inference drawn from his statement was that the committee is not much farther along in its quest for the facts than it was in the beginning.

Senators Robbins, Wilkins and Banning, the committee members, may have to stay over in Lincoln until Saturday to complete their check of the state records. Mr. Robbins had been intending to leave for California this week or next, but he said Friday morning that he might not be able to go. He is chairman of the committee.

Johnson Will Testify.

The committee has not as yet held any public hearings or called any witnesses before it. Former State Engineer Johnson, who was at the capitol Friday, said he had been notified some time ago that he would be asked to testify and that he was ready to appear whenever the committee called upon him. Mr. Johnson will contradict Governor Bryan's charge that a $400,000 deficit in state highway funds was left by Johnson when he retired from office.

Governor Bryan, State Engineer Cochran, Finance Secretary Hall, State Auditor Marsh, and State Accountant Sommer are others whom the committee may request to appear before it for interrogation.

WOULD INCREASE TRACTION RATES

Lincoln Company Asks Railway Commission to Again Open Its Case.

Request of the Lincoln Traction Co. for the reopening of the case involving the valuation of its property and rates of street care fare has been granted by the state railway commission, and the hearing thereon is set to begin January 14 at 10:30 a. m.

The company desires to increase the rate of single cash fare on short line hauls from 8 cents to 10 cents, leaving the ticket rate four for 30 cents, as at present. This would make the cash rate to University Place, Havelock, Bethany, Normal and College View 12 cents.

It is not satisfied with the valuation of $2,824,000 placed upon the street railway plant by the railway commission. The company claims a valuation in the neighborhood of $4,000,000 on that portion of its property. The auxiliary heat, light and power plants are not under the commission's jurisdiction.

The Traction case has been before the commission in various phases for six years or more. During that time, fares have been raised by successive stages from six for a quarter on the shorter lines and 5 cents on the longer ones to the schedule now prevailing and the issue of preferred stock has now been increased several hundred thousand dollars.

COREY PLANS TO LEAVE AMERICA

Former President Steel Corporation to Settle Permanently In France.

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—William E. Corey who rose from obscurity to presidency of the United States Steel corporation at 38 and who four years later abandoned his commanding position and married a musical comedy star after a romantic courtship, intends to settle permanently in France, according to his associates in the steel industry.

News that Mr. Corey intended to follow in the footsteps of the late Viscount Astor in expatriating himself became known when it was disclosed last night that a farewell luncheo had been tendered him a fortnight ago by a group of his business associates.

The decision apparently followed closely the granting last month by a Paris court of a divorce to the second Mrs. Corey who was Miss Mabelle Gilman, a musical comedy star.

It was then that Mr. Corey resigned from the steel corporation.

COOLIDGE STUDIES MARINE PROBLEM

sident Takes Advantage Of Congressional Recess To Devise Solution.

Expected To Comply With Farley's Request And Withdraw His Name.

(Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28. — President Coolidge is taking advantage of the lessened pressure of public affairs due to the congressional recess to devise a solution of the long vexing merchant marine problem.

Nearly half of the president's engagements this week have concerned the shipping problem, which has resolved itself for the present into three phases.

One is selection of a new chairman of the shipping board which has been made necessary by adverse action of the senate commerce committee on the nomination of Edward P. Farley of Chicago, now chairman of the board. Another is the formulation of a definite policy for operation of the government-owned merchant marine, and the third is settlement of the question of the extension of the coastwise shipping laws to the Philippines.

The indications are that Mr. Coolidge will comply with Mr. Farley's request and withdraw his nomination when the senate reconvenes January 3.

Selection of new chairman has narrowed down in the president's mind to a question of elevation of one of the present commissioners or the appointment of a new man to the place. In event one of the sitting commissioners is made chairman, it is considered probable that it will be either E. C. Plummer of Bath, Me., or T. V. O'Connor of Buffalo, N. Y.

Ainsworth School Girls Organize 'Hot Lunch' Club

AINSWORTH, Neb., Dec. 28.—Girls of the domestic science department of the high school here have organized a "hot lunch" club, and are now serving the pupils of the school with warm dishes at noon. The club was organized under the auspices of the state agricultural extension service, of the Nebraska college of agriculture head of the experiment, declared today that the pupils were well satisfied with the arrangement, whereby they bring their lunches from home, as formerly, and these are supplimented by hot dishes which the domestic science prepare. These dishes are served cafeteria style.

"The club was organized last November, principally for the benefit of the pupils who live in rural districts, and who would have to travel long distances to their homes for lunch," she said.

The club is divided into three groups. The first plans menus, cooks, and serves the food. Another group washes dishes and cares for the order of the lunch room. The third takes care of account and the school advertising. The groups change office once each week.

Posters, advertising students of the menu for the following day, are posted in the corridors of the school daily. Meals are furnished at cost. Children are asked to order their hot lunch for the following day, so that there will be no waste and so that each student will have all that he or she wishes.

The domestic science class has received new equipment with which to prepare the lunches. Their first lessons in cooking have all been in the preparation of the cafeteria food.

One of the men is said to have bought a collar in a local store and while he was making the purchase, the other stuffed a suit of clothes under his coat. The suit was recovered before they reached the door and the arrest followed.

Two Convicted Of Selling Liquor On Indian Reservation

OMAHA, Neb., Dec. 28.—Charged with selling liquor to Indians of the Winnebago reservation John Haaker and F. G. Delong of South Sioux City were found guilty Thursday afternoon by a federal jury and sentenced to six months in jail.

Police Judge Carlos Goltz of Sioux City appeared as lawyer for the defense. This is the first record of an active judge appearing in the federal court at Omaha as attorney in such a case.

Haaker and Delong, according to F. T. Mann, Indian agent, have sold much liquor to the Indians on the reservation near Sioux City. The reservation has been flooded with liquor, the agent said.

For over two months prohibition agents have been trying to make a "buy" at the place. Agents testified that they purchased liquor at places of both men. The defense offered no evidence.

CLIMAX NEAR IN LIQUOR LIST ROW

Hold Bootlegger Alleged Have Furnished House Building With Bonded Goods.

Representative Newton May Ask Congressional Probe Of Rum Situation.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—The national capital's latest liquor row, involving the mysterious disappearance of a list of bootlegger's customers said to contain the names of many important personages, moved toward a climax today.

Dry agents announced the arrest of a bootlegger they declared had been in the business of supplying the house building with bonded goods. The recent raid on an apartment house resulting in the discovery of bonded liquor valued at $35,000 and claimed by Dr. V. Sokolowski, first secretary of the Polish legation, threatened complications. The Polish government at Warsaw is said to have cabled the Polish minister here demanding a full report on the incident and representative Newton of Minnesota, wrote a letter to Secretary of State Hughes requesting information as to the status of so-called "diplomatic liquor."

Representative Newton also wanted to know whether the stock was "imported or domestic," and what had become of the list said to contain the names of thirty statesmen. Newton sent letters to Secretary Hughes and Internal Revenue Commissioner Blair preparatory, it is is understood, to asking a congressional investigation of the rum situation here.

DAVIS SAYS U. S. MUST DRAW LINE

Secretary Labor Declares America Not "World Orphan Asylum."

Cities Examples In Support Of Restriction On Immigration.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—Discussing in a letter to Rabbi J. S. Minken of Rochester, N. Y., that it was permit the United Stiaes to become a "kind of world orphan asylum or foundling home or a home for the destitute."

"Your statement that it is the duty of the United States to mother all to my view," Davis wrote.

"How long would American resources be able to maintain an American standard of living in the face of unrestricted admission of the unfortunates of the world?

"There are hundreds of millions of Chinese in the vast stretches of Asia, whose living conditions and mode of life are truly deplorable. Probably millions of them would be glad to make their way to the United States. What would be the result? The standards of living in America would soon sink to the level of the coolie. Would you include those whose destiny it is for America to mother?

Questions Writer.

"Would you continue to admit without restriction the Mexicans who are today crowding over our southern border? Do you know that today the state of New Mexico is forced to pay interpreters and translators to conduct the business of its legislature, and that in some of its courts, business is conducted in a language other than English? Would you davocate immigration policies which would ultimately impose these same conditions on the stiae of New York or the government of the United States?

"Yoor plea for the suffering masses in Europe strikes a responsive chord in my breast. America out of her bountiful charity may well do all she can to ease the suffering f tphe unfortunate everywhere, but your proposal seems to be that she should take to her bosom every individual who wishes to come ere, regardless of mental, moral or physical taint, which they may bring with them. Truly I cannot agree with any such policy."

SEPARATE TREATY BEING SUGGESTED

Franco - German Agreement Proposed By Prominent Industrialist.

PARIS, Dec. 28. — Arnold Reichberg, formerly aid de camp to Crown Prince Freaderich Wilhelm and now a German industrialist, in an interview with Premier Poincare proposed a separate Franco German treaty to provide security for reparations payments, it was revealed today by the Matin.

Reichberg, according to the Matin, conferred also with Louis Barthou, French president of the inter-allied reparations committee and Marshal Foch.

Under the proposed treaty, German industrials would increase the capital of their companies 30 per cent, turning over the new capital stock to France. France could dispose of this stock to French industrials who would, in turn, hand the receipts to the reparations commission.

According to the Matin, Reichberg expects American capitalists to aid the French industrialists.

Most Cities Not Living Within Incomes, Census Bureau Shows

(Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28. — The cities of the country generally there are exceptions—are not living within their incomes, census bureau statistics announced today, indicate.

A compilation of revenues and expenditures in the fiscal year 1922, for 261 cities having a population of 30,000 or more, shows a total indebtedness, incurred that year amounting to $5.56 for each resident. The cost of government per capita, including expenditures for permanent improvement, amounted to $57.38 for the year, against revenues of $51.81, the total figures being $2,222,566,519 and $2,007,008,796, respectively.

The total net indebtedness at the close of the year was $3,618,967,272 or $93.42 per capita.

The total cost of government in 1922 was highest in the cities having a population of 500,000 or over, with a per capita cost of $66.88. The next highest per capita $64.29, is shown for cities with a population of 300,000 to 500,000. The per capita cost of cities from 100,000 to 300,000 amounted to $48.71, of cities from 50,000 to 100,000, $44.94, and in the small cities, having a population of 30,000 to 50,000, $44.38.

Increase Shown.

Comparable statistics for 199 of the principal cities show the per capita cost has increased from $34.68 in 1918 to $58.07 in 1922. An analysis of the costs of the city government shows the per capita cost for maintenance and operation of general departments was the principal item and amounted to $33.16. The per capita cost of permanent improvements was $15.96.

New York, the countrys largest city, came through the year with a surplus of revenues of $3.28 per capita over expenditures, but the per capita net indebtedness amounted to $182.72. Chicago's lacked $3.36 per capita of meeting her expenditures but her net indebtedness mounts to only $46.36 per capita.

COURT WITHHOLDS SEARCH WARRANTS

Douglas County Sheriff to Obtain None In Omaha Tribunal.

OMAHA, Neb., Dec 28.—Municipal Judge Dineen Thursday in police court told Olaf Thestrup, head of the sheriff's raiding squad, that he would issue no more search warrants to Sheriff Endres' forces for use in liquor raids.

At the same time he discharged John and Charles L. Lankes, proprietors of a soft drink place at Twenty-sixth and Q streets, arrested by Thestrup in a raid.

When Thestrup said he would take the men into federal court for trial, and asked for the return of some alcohol he said he had seized as evidence in the case, the judge refused to turn it over.

"It is the order of this court that the alcohol be seized and destroyed," said Dineen. "The evidence was taken on a city search warrant and it is within the jurisdiction of this court to have it destroyed."

Dineen refused to listen to evidence against the Lankes, who denied Thestrup's assertion that the alcohol, found in a kitchen back of the soft drink parlor, was their property.

The judge's refusal came after Thestrup told him that another case against William Lamb of South Omaha had been turned over to the federal court, although Lamb had been arrested on a city warrant. Thestrup explained that he turned Lamb over to federal authorities because he believed labels found on alleged bottles of whisky in Lamb's possession had been forged.

Thestrup telephoned County Attorney Beal with intent to bring mandamus action to force Dineen to return evidence in the Lankes case, but was informed that the process would take time and that the alcohol could be destroyed in the meantime.

To Return Fields' Body For Burial

(Special to The Star.)

FREMONT, Neb., Dec. 28.—Arrangements are being made by relatives of R. B. Fields, well-known Fremont man, who was found dead in an apartment in Los Angeles, to bring the body here for burial. Aside from newspaper reports relatives are without information as to the manner of Mr. Fields' death. He was a member of the well known pioneer family of B. E. Fields. He was graduated from the Fremont high school about twenty years ago and at once became associated with his father in the nursery business. He was married in 1901 to Nina Nicodemus, a schoolmate. One daughter, Laura, was born to them.

Mr. Fields left Fremont about eighteen months ago and while the family continued to maintain a home here, Mr. Fields absence was continuous. He was engaged for a time with an oil concern in Oklahoma and then with a cotton mills company in California. Possessed of an unusually pleasing personality, Fields was highly popular with his associates here. He was a member of the Elks and Masonic lodges.

Fremont Sewage Disposal Bonds May Meet Defeat

(Special to The Star.)

FREMONT, Neb., Dec. 28.—A special election in an effort to vote $100,000 in bonds for the construction of a sewage system to the Elkhorn river from Fremont, will be filed here Monday. At an election two years ago a proposal to vote similar bonds was defeated.

As a result of the defeat of the first bond proposal, the mayor and members of the city council were held in contempt of the supreme court for failure to comply with orders of the high tribunal. The contempt order, however, was set aside when lower courts sustained a complaint of Douglas county farmers contending the dumping fothe city's sewage into Rawhide creek was a nuisance and a menace to the health of the people through whose property the creek passed. An extension of time to comply with the order was granted also.

There seems to be a feeling of doubt as to whether the proposal will carry at the special election, since there is bitter opposition to it.

Lincoln Again Sees Lightnin' At the Orpheum

Delightful, spontaneous comedy intermixed with pathos, neither a light comedy nor a tragedy of the depressing sort, the kind of a play the ordinary folks will see again and again—that's Lightnin' seen for second time at the Orpheum theatre Thursday night.

In the title role Lincoln saw a master who made the loss of Frank Bacon to the play and to the theatrical world less poignant because a fit successor had been found for his place.

Thomas Jefferson, life long friend of Frank Bacon, and chosen by Bacon before he died to play the part, enchanted his audience.

At the end of the second act, player after player appeared and received his ovation but when Jefferson returned to the stage the audience became a collection of frenzied enthusiasts.

Bessie Bacon, daughter of the creator of the title role, and wife of Matthew Allen, former Lincoln boy, who now manages the play, also deserves praise.

Charles E. Evans, who played the part of the middle-aged but still romantic Judge Lemuel Townsend, furnished comedy enough for all He has been drafted by the management from another show and the addition was a welcome one

A KLAN OFFICER SCORES CLARKE

(Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28. — E. Y. Clarke, formerly high in the councils of the Ku Klux Klan, has been attempting for months to destroy the order, according to a statement issued by Milton Elrod, director of its department of publications and education after the publication of Mr. Clarke's demand for "reform" within the organization or its dissolution.

Mr. Clarke's charge, in a letter to President Coolidge that "an element" of the klan was diverting it from the purposes and ideals of its founders and his announcement that he intended to call upon the "better lemet" to take steps to "remedy the existing evils" or disband the organization, brought from Mr. Elrod a declaration that the membership had grown from less than one hundred thousand members after seven years of Carke's regime" to "a total membership of millions under the present administration."

MOTHER SLAYS TWO CHILDREN

Woman Temporarily Insane Burns Babies At Home In Iowa.

Mind a Blank Concerning Tragedy, Hospital Attendants Says.

UTE, Ia., Dec. 28. — Mrs. Fred Vauss, under hospital care for burns on her face and neck, sought in vain today for an answer to her question:

"Where are my babies?"

A three-months old baby and Eldon, 15 months old, were dead after their mother's insane frenzy had converted the smallest child into a oil-soaked torch and imprisoned the older brother, with his sister Irene, 6, in a closet filled with blazing, oil-soaked clothing

The mother's mind was a blank concerning the tragedy, hospital attendants believed.

Fred Vauss, father of the fire victims, said he was working in the barnyard of their farm house, when Mrs Vauss wrapped the baby in blankets, laid it on the bed, poured kerosene over its clothing and set fire to it, then poured oil over clothing in a closet, set it ablaze and locked Eldon and Irene in.

The little girl broke the lock on the closet door and escaped from the flaming room. The father broke a closet window and got Eldon out, but the boy died from his burns in a hospital.

The father attempted to reach the baby's blazing form on the bed with a rake, but the bed was too far from the window and the flames made it impossible to enter the room.

Asserts People Do Not Know How To Read Papers

CHICAGO, Dec. 28.—Ninety per cent of the people, literate as well as illiterate, are ignorant of how to read a newspaper, Dix Harwood of Lawrence college, Appleton, Wis., told the American association of teachers of journalism at its convention here yesterday. Mr. Harwood recommended that a large proportion of the pupils in classes of journalism be taught to read news intelligently than to write it.

R. R. Barlow of the University of Minnesota, secretary-treasurer, said that 75 per cent of his pupils never became reporters and 50 per cent were curiosity seekers who did not expect to write. A similar report was made by Miss Ethel Outland of Coe college in Iowa, who said that many of her pupils were romantic young people whom the department sought to send out with a better understanding of the functions of newspapers, rather than as finished newspaper people.

Critical Situation At Tokio Following Plot to Slay Prince Regent.

Ruffians Attempt Gain Entrance at Homes Of Prominent Officials.

(Associated Press.)

TOKIO, Dec. 28.—The critical situation prevailing here as a result of the attempted assassination of Prince Regent Hirohito yesterday resulted in an atempt by a crowd of ruffians to obtain entrance to the homes of Premier Yamoto and Home Minister Goto.

The attempt was frustrated by the police.

Baron Goto has been accused of having socialistic teadencies, since he extended a private invitation, last January, when he was mayor of Tokio, to A. A. Joffre, special envoy from the Moscow soviet to the Far East, to visit Tokio.

The Seiyukai or majority political party of the diet, which Goto opposed, had intended to introduce a vote of confidence in the diet owing to allegations that Baron Goto had paid certain sums of money to the late Sakaye Osugh socialist leader recently slain by Captain Amakasu and whose ashes were stolen from the room in which they lay in state on the day of the funeral.

Investigation of the attempted assassination which occurred while the prince regent was on his way to convene the diet in ordinary session yesterday morning had indicated that Namba, 27, his assailant, attended Waseda university, where a large radical element is said to exist.

The attack on the prince regent, who was uninjured, although Viscount Iriye, chief chamberlain, who was was riding with him was cut by flying glass from a window of their automobile, has aroused great excitement.

NAVAL RESERVE CONDITION 'BAD'

Rear Admiral Moffett Says Air Service Situation "Deplorable."

Asserts Flying Unit Wholly Unprepared In Case Of a War.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28—The condition of the naval reserve force so far as the naval air service is concerned "is deplorable" Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the bureau of aeronautics of the navy department asserted in his annual report to Secretary Denby, made public yesterday.

"In the event of hostilities," the report said, "we must have a flying reserve of no less than 3,000 pilots. At present there is a total of but 210 aviators in classes five and six of the naval reserve forces.

"It takes at last six months to train an aviator. Should war come while there is such a lack of reserve, navy aviation will be practically unprepared, for it would take a large part of our qualified aviators to train the necessary pilots.

"To remedy this situation an appropriation of $1,500,000 should be included in the appropriation for the naval reserve force. This will permit he training of 500 officers during the fiscal year 1924."

Situation Grave.

Admiral Moffett said that the situation which faced naval aviation as to the material was "a very grave one."

"For two years past there has been available a war stock of material which has been used to the extent of $10,000,000 a year," the report said. "This war stock is no longer available. Unless the appropriation is greatly increased, aviation must go backward."

Summarizing developments during the year in new equipment for naval aircraft, Admiral Moffett said that there had been important advances in the production of suitable types of airplane engines for various classes of aircraft.

Experiments with new airplane motor fuels during the year has indicated a possible reduction in fuel consumption of 25 per cent, as compared with straight gasoline, the report said. Development of substitute for gasoline now are tending toward the use of a gasoline-alcohol combination, although final decision remains to be made.

SAVINGS MADE BY GOVERNOR NOT AS BIG AS CLAIMED

Auditor Marsh Says They Amount to But a Small Sum.

Makes Comparison On Entirely Different Basis From Bryan's.

Instead of nearly a million dollars saving claimed by Governor Bryan for the departments under his control during the first six months of his administration State Auditor Marsh asserts in a statement given out Friday that only $95 186 was actually saved during that time in the administrative and ordinary expenses of these departments

The auditor compares expenditures for the first six months of 1923 under Bryan with those of the same period in 1922 under McKelvie Governor Bryan had taken as the basis of his comparison the first six months of 1921 that year being the one in which a regular legislative session was held whose expenses would balance those of the regular session in 1923

Deducts Military Expense

Auditor Marsh omits from his 1923 figures about $150 000 spent for keeping national guard troops on strike duty in February of that year He also leaves out bovine tuberculosis expenditures for both 1922 and 1923 which were much heavier in the former annum

He allows no credit to the Bryan administration for a reduction of nearly $600 000 in highway expenditures this year compared with 1922

Following is the auditor's analysis in whose preparation he was aided by State Accountant C A Sommers

Comparative statement of administrative and ordinary expenses of the departments under the control of the governor during the first six months of 1922 and 1923 as shown by the state auditor's records

	Jan 1 1922 to June 30 '22	Jan 1 1923 to June 30 '23
Department of agriculture (exclusive of bovine tuberculosis)	$112 833 1	$ 96 668 04
Dept of finance exclusive of blue book	18 [illegible] 64	22 401 9
Dept of labor	8 863 0[illegible]	20 76
Dept of public welfare	78 889 01	2 0 6 00
Dept of trade and
Total ordinary expense of code items (exclusive of Dept of public works	$ 43 70 97	$224 199 03
Governor's office	5 374 47	1 604 20
Law enforcement	17 825 35	17 266 0[illegible]
Militar Dpt exclusive of emergency banking house strike	24 897 62	2 [illegible] 90
Total	$293 00 15	$367 417 16

Says Real Saving Very Small

This indicates a saving of $26 08[illegible] administrative and ordinary expenses in the above departments under Governor Bryan's control during the first six months of his term as compared with the same six months of the preceding year Figuring the assessed valuation of the state as $8 200 millions this represents a saving to the taxpayers of not quite one cent per $1 000 00 valuation

In the above the department of public works is not included The expenditures for material and construction of roads and bridges during the first six months of 1922 were $1 [illegible] 3 9 as against an expenditure of only $974 063 2 during the first six months of 1923 under Governor Bryan indicating a curtailment of $798 690 3? or 4[illegible] per cent in public improvements The curtailment of $798 690 3 Governor Bryan classes as a saving With less road work done fewer men would be needed and it does not seem unreasonable to expect a similar curtailment in the department al expense The expense of the department of public works during the first six months of 1922 was $114 890 24 Had the expenses been curtailed 4 per cent as perhaps they should the expenses for the first 6 months of 1923 would have amounted to only $83 189 63 whereas they actually amounted to $80 161 18 Thus instead of a saving of expenses in the department of public works there appears to be an excess of expenses of some $17 000 during the first six months under Governor Bryan on basis of the amount of work done

Tuberculosis Work Curtailed

There was also work done to eradicate bovine tuberculosis the figures being $69 711 9[illegible] for 1923 as against $[illegible]1 036 96 during 1920 under Bryan If this may be considered a saving Governor Bryan is entitled to the credit In his statement of his savings Governor Bryan has included this item of $48 6 4 1

During Governor Bryan's six months the militia was not called upon to do strike duty The excess expenditure of the military department due to the packing house strike paid during the first six months of 192[illegible] was $14[illegible]0 149 This amount Governor Bryan has also included among his savings

In the department of finance there was a special expenditure under Governor Bryan of $2 5[illegible]8 [illegible]0 for printing the blue book This item has been deducted from the 1923 expense in the above comparative statement in order to secure a fair basis for comparison

LOOKING AHEAD

"The best Christmas message to the whole state," wrote A. E. Anderson, federal crop statistician for Nebraska, "I think is this statement that the agriculturalists of the state raised a greater volume of crops than in previous years."

When inventories are being taken for 1923, and plans are being completed for the new year, it is well to keep these facts in mind. Mr. Anderson is a conservative of the deepest hue. He never overstates. When Mr. Anderson becomes enthusiastic over crop production, then the whole wide world has ample license to do some shouting. The federal crop expert makes no effort to minimize the importance of the most remarkable crop season that Nebraska has ever experienced.

A study of the record reveals that nine of the principal grain crops in Nebraska yielded 396,730,000 bushels of compared with 305,566,000 bushels in 1922. All grains with the single exception of wheat, thrived to an unusual degree. Corn production, the major crop, has been exceeded but once since the federal government has been compiling figures. Barley was a record crop. Oats netted a heavier yield but twice in the history of the state. Hay raised in Nebraska in 1923 aggregated 6,375,000 tons as compared with 1,905,000 tons in 1922, and it was considered a good yield.

Yet in spite of all of these encouraging factors, looking towards a recovery of prosperous conditions in Nebraska, large numbers of business men are looking to the future darkly. The farmer himself is in a happier frame of mind. Prices are not as satisfactory as they might be, but in marked contrast to the outlook at the close of 1922, the Nebraska farmer is looking ahead to the coming year hopefully. It is the business man who is looking backward today.

* * *

It has been said that prices are not altogether satisfactory.

Wheat, it is freely admitted, is not bringing a remunerative price. Corn is selling for a few cents less than it should bring on the market but no one pretends that 53 cent corn, and that is the figure which Mr. Anderson uses in computing the value of the 1923 Nebraska corn crop as the average price paid in towns of this state on December 1, is not remunerative. The average value of every acre of corn planted in Nebraska in 1923 was $17.49 in marked contrast to $8.30 for winter wheat, $7.47 for spring wheat, $11.22 for oats, $12.32 for barley, $6.72 for rye, $64 for potatoes and $23.10 for hay.

Mr. Anderson's figures show that the total value of agricultural produce in Nebraska in 1923 was $272,295,000 as against $244,309,000 in 1922.

IN OTHER WORDS, THE VALUE OF THE 1923 CROPS IN NEBRASKA WAS, AT THE CURRENT MARKET PRICES IN THIS STATE ON DECEMBER 1, $27,986,000 GREATER THAN THE VALUE OF THE 1922 CROP ON THE SAME DATE A YEAR BEFORE.

The last federal census gave Nebraska a population of 1,300,000. As a result of the unusually excellent crop conditions in Nebraska in 1923, and better prices for some of the produce, the value of the total farm production in this state is $20 more for every man, woman and child. The latest figures compiled show there are 116,419 farmers in Nebraska. Every farm produced $213 more in 1923, as a result of the larger crops and better prices, than it did in 1922.

It is time to stop backtracking

Truthfully it may be said that conditions have improved very noticeably in Nebraska. In making plans for 1924, why not take cognizance of the actual facts?

GOVERNMENT RED TAPE.

An item appearing in the Omaha World-Herald yesterday affords food for reflection on governmental stupidity, and governmental red tape. The item read:

"Assistant United States Attorney Keyser has received a letter from the War department asking him to remit $6.36, claimed due for an overpayment made on his army payment voucher ni France, December 1917. The error was made in the price of rations, the government says.

It would be most interesting to know how many hands that claim passed through before it was finally presented to Attorney Keyser. It would be most illuminating if information were available as to how much time was consumed in the examination of the records before the government auditors finally discovered that Keyser owed Uncle Sam $6.36. It is more than a safe guess that the cost of tracing down the error was more than twice as much as the sum which the government will receive from Keyser.

While the taxpayers of this country are aroused over the matter of tax burdens, it would be well to remember that dozens and dozens of incidents similar to the Keyser case exist in the different departments and bureaus at Washington. That is one very important reason why taxes are so burdensome at this time. Hundreds of men and women employed in the governmental departments and bureaus at Washington are engaged in checking old records. Years after the mistake occurred it is discovered. Then the government sets about to recover a few cents here, and a few dollars there. It is self-evident that a rigid check of records must be made in order to protect the government from fraud, but the practice of cluttering up governmental bureaus with an army of employes for the purpose of ferreting out a few cents here and there, alleged to have been wrongfully paid, is bad in that it costs the taxpayer a great deal more than Uncle Sam can possibly hope to recover. When a lot of the red tape at Washington is eliminated, the taxpayer may expect to get some relief, and not until that time.

AN UNKNOWN RACE.

How little we know of the out of the way places of our own little world is almost startlingly demonstrated in an article in the current issue of The Dearborn Independent, written by William A. McGarry and dealing with the explorations and deductions of the late Theodore de Booy among the savage, dwarfed tribes of Indians living almost unknown in the jungles of Venezuela.

The most primitive race in the world, these people are described, a tribe or set of tribes living very much as did all the human races fifteen to twenty thousand years ago. For a study in evolution and to add to the scanty knowledge that scientists have of these almost lost races, the exploration and report of deBooy is considered the most valuable addition made in many years.

The tribe is known as the Macoas, dwarf Indians, the men averaging only a trifle more than five feet in height, the women averaging five inches shorter. They do not know the use of flint and steel. They still make fire by rubbing sticks together. They live in isolation, each family apart, only the simplest cooperation exists between them and they are almost constantly at war with other tribes and among themselves. Each family occupies a hill top and the whole tribe lives in an almost perpetual fog, which hovers constantly over their mountain range, making what should be a tropical climate, most uncomfortably damp and cold.

Much difficulty was experienced by de Booy in getting guides to take him to the mysterious tribe and in receiving permission to make them a visit. He was finally allowed to go with one other person and he chose a personal servant so that he was the only white man in the party that ventured into the wilderness of the tropics to explore the homes and habits of the Macoas.

He found them a rather friendly, somewhat curious, dirty, quarrelsome, primitive people. The women wore loin cloths and mantles discarding the latter save during the most severe cold. The men wore long sacks, resembling night gowns and men, women and children painted their faces with strange and terrible designs. For food they eat half-roasted game. Their weapons are bows and arrows in the use of which they teach their children at a tender age.

They hold monthly celebrations known as Chica feasts, at each full moon and drink until the entire tribe is intoxicated to a helpless degree. The liquor is made with maize, crushed ripe bananas, crushed sweet potatoes and water and was found by de Booy to be a particularly vicious drink.

The Macoas are one tribe which makes up the Motilone family, a family of mysterious, savage mountain tribes known as Tucucus, Irapenos Parirs, Rio Negro and Rio Yasa. They have long been known to exist but there the information ended. Venezuelans are unwilling to venture into their forests.

These Macoas told de Booy of a mountain cavern some distance from their tribal headquarters where burials of another ancient tribe had been held. The explorer persuaded some of the natives to accompany him on an effort to reach this mysterious cave but within sight of their objective mountain they refused to go further and de Booy was forced to return. He believed, however, and included in his reports the theory that valuable additions to the archaeology of South America and possible treasure of considerable amount might be found in that cavern.

All told he spent six weeks with the Macoas and then returned with his guides to his waiting party, which was not any too sure that he would ever return. De Booy has since died but he left the most authoritative information yet obtained concerning the little known tribe of dwarf Indians of South America.

CONSTITUTIONAL EDUCATION.

No more important nor patriotic work was ever undertaken by the lawyers of Nebraska than that contemplated through the amendment of the constitution of the state Bar association so as to provide for a committee on Americanization and the study of the federal constitution. And it is eminently proper that the attorneys above all others, should interest themselves in work of this character.

The plan proposed by the Bar association is a most comprehensive one and provides for the teaching of the principles of citizenship and real Americanism in the various schools and colleges of the state by those competent to give such instruction and who have an interest in the preservation of the ideals upon which this government is grounded.

It cannot be denied that there has been within these later years a tendency to regard the fundamental law of the land too lightly; as a thing on a par with a city ordinance, to be amended or changed upon the slightest pretext or passing whim, instead of a firm foundation, not to be altered or changed save after the most thorough consideration and extensive discussion.

The constitution of the United States, with its original amendments embracing the Bill of Rights, saving to the various states and the citizens thereof those rights and privileges to which each is justly entitled, has been regarded as the greatest charter upon which a government was ever builded and its provisions should be more clearly understood by those who live under it; and this applies to native as well as naturalized citizens.

All of these should be taught that while American citizenship confers valued rights and privileges it is likewise exacting, demanding unswerving loyalty in thought, word and deed. There can be no divided allegiance, with a vote here and a heart in some other land. The best and surest way by which to bring such a condition is by instructing all in regard to the constitution, its meaning and the privileges it confers as well as the limitations which it places upon those who live under it.

More Truth Than Poetry

The rouble once was treated with respect.
The guinea was a thing that people prized;
The franc, as you will doubtless recollect,
Had merits that were widely recognized;
In other years the humble little mark
Had value that it never will get back;
I remember, and I'm not a patriarch,
When the dollar was a handsome piece of jack.

In seasons that to memory are dear—
Perhaps you can recall them if you try—
Five thousand good old iron men per year
Gave one a fair excuse for stepping high:
The sweet stenog who got fifteen a week
Was envied by her sisters, young and old,
But the dollar has a manner that is meek,
When it's handed out where things are bought and sold.

There was a time when ham and eggs were not
Set off among the priceless luxuries,
When, with a ten-cent piece of pie, one got
A free and not too stingy chunk of cheese.
When shoes and clothes and rent and coal were cheap,
When a derby cost three dollars, and no more,
When a postman's wages were enough to keep

The rouble has become a gruesome joke,
The pound has lost the dignity it had:
The mark is flattened by a fatal stroke,
The franc's condition, frankly's rather bad;
The lire and crown are full of nasty dents,
The florin isn't soaring very high:
The dollar still is worth a hundred cents,
It's all th[illegible] a hundred cents will buy.

A Bit of Homely Philosophy

PEOPLE WHO MAKE CARELESS STATEMENTS IN LETTERS LIVE TO REGRET THEM.

"Do not put in a letter anything which anyone would like to steal and publish."

A wise old man gave this bit of advice
And it is mighty good advice, too.
He might have added, "do not put anything on paper you would be unwilling for the world to know."

Are you one of the careless, thoughtless persons who write and write, and consider what you have said in writing afterwards.

Suppose your letters should be lost and should be found by a person who would make their contents known, what effect would this have on your peace of mind—perhaps on your standing in society?

The confidential statements you make to a friend, on paper, today, may be shown in a few years in the most damaging way for you.

You cannot be too careful what you say in any letter.

It is far better for you if your letters are few and far between if you are not guarded about what you put down with your pen.

Words can be forgotten but a written statement burns itself into the memory of the one who reads, particularly if it be damaging statements.

British Tariff Policy.

(Madison Star-Mail)

England formerly was a high tariff country. Following the wars of Napoleon that racked Europe for a number of years, a financial depression followed much like the present one and the English farmers suffered exactly as American farmers are now suffering. The English tried for 30 years to legislate to help farmers but could accomplish nothing. Then about 100 years ago they turned to free trade and their factories became volcanos of activity and men were given employment and the British shipping carried English goods to all parts of the earth and England became the wealthy nation of the earth. Free trade did it, but recently many English being envious of the wealth of the United States imagined that a high protective tariff would improve the condition that followed the destruction caused by war. The issue was a high tariff for England, but the elections there last week decided to keep on letting well enough alone by defeating protective tariff

Electricity on Farms.

(York Times.)

Farmers all over the country find electricity a great help. It is used for light and power. Not many years ago windmills were used throughout Iowa on the farms for water pumping purposes. Then the winds got so weak the mills did not run and the farmers resorted to gasoline engines. These worked very well but sometimes became obdurate. Now the farmers whenever they can, use electricity. The same conditions prevail in other states as in the state of Iowa.

Under a law enacted by the Nebraska legislature farmers may petition a power company for service and get it. There are certain requirements that must be observed but where a sufficient number join in the request the service must be arranged. Recently 60 farmers near Wahoo petitioned for electric service and they will be accommodated.

Electricity on the farm, provides light, power for pumping, power for churning, grinding feed, laundry and other work. It is great and farm people are to be congratulated if they are situated so they may have this reliable service. In Nebraska there is a great expansion of electric service and it will not be many years' until this great state is a network of lines furnishing electricity for the use of farmers and townspeople.

Worth With Wealth.

(Grand Island Independent)

Envy of mere wealth ought not to find a place in the heart. Many men of wealth are much more conscientious, true to the principles of real Christianity, sympathetic with those who are unfortunate, and possessed of a will to do that which is right, than are many men who have never earnestly strived, have never correctly interpreted the meaning of the biblical injunction that men must earn their bread in the sweat of their brow and have never been able to save anything. Men can and do acquire great wealth in absolutely righteous manner. Is the thing that is done right or wrong? That's the main question.

Governmental Functions.

(Kearney Hub.)

Walter W. Head, a Nebraskan, president of the American Bankers' association, said the other day in a talk to Chicago bankers: "A government must be conducted so that it will not become the master but remain the servant of the people." We do not recall having read a briefer or better statement of the functions of government.

Quit Kicking.

(Harvard Courier)

It would not be impossible to invest money in tax free securities if the law did not allow such paper to be issued. Bricklayers and plasterers would get no more wages than farm hands. Bank presidents would work for $40 a month if they were numerous enough. Good pipe tobacco would be given away if it were as common as corn husks. No one would want silk sox or diamonds if they were cheap, and lots of other things we kick about, are due entirely to conditions. If we can't change them lets quit kicking. If we can change them lets do it and quit kicking. It is poor policy to kick unless you have something to kick about and can get somewhere by doing it.

The Eastern Idea.

(Gordon Journal.)

Perhaps President Coolidge can be re-elected by the East but we doubt if he can carry Nebraska against a good strong Democratic candidate. The New England idea that all the brains of the country are back there never did appeal to the west and we doubt if it will in 1924. They think we are all savages. We think we know at least a little. They seem to think they know what is best for us. We would like an opportunity to tell them a few things we think might do them some good.

The Radio Nuisance.

LINCOLN, Neb., Dec. 27.

To the editor of The Lincoln Star:

If your neighbor sends a terrible noise over on your property into the hours of the night, leaves a stench on his property, or fills your air space with dust or other substance that makes the enjoyment of your property impossible and destroys your peace of mind courts of equity give you injunctive relief.

The parent who would not think of having trouble with his neighbor on any of these more or less fixed matters will not hesitate to encourage his ambitious son, or his ambitious self, to imagine that there is an electric genius in the house and by a more or less worthless sending set destroy the enjoyment of several thousand people of their radio property which they would like to enjoy by receiving stations from over the United States. When this electric genius gets started he is no respecter of time, seasons, persons, or what not. He simply tries out the stuff and puts thousands of dollars worth of radios on the blink. Thousands of listeners in Lincoln and vicinity may be enjoying grand opera, the president's speech from the White House, or matters of national importance but does this genius with all of his power care. On your life he does not! He says I am ready to send. Or he calls out to his chum, "All right old man, that comes in fine—now try so in so and it may be clearer — all right old man, so in so signing off—come on in old man." When this breaks into a concert from Pittsburgh it would tempt a man to go forth, find the culpret, and flog him for he has destroyed the enjoyment of thousands. Just now this sounds like a joke, but think it over. The radio has come to stay. Parents, will you please abate the nuisances in your homes. No parent wants his child to be a nuisance. Don't you remember how you walked the floor with the little devil to keep him from waking up the whole household. Remember that if you have a sending set you are a nuisance everytime you allow it to be used.

If the legal radio interference is not stopped every family having one should be requested by everyone who knows it to cease in honesty and fairness to the rest. Our government is founded on the largest real enjoyment to the greatest number in the long run. Radio telegraph and telephone by the kids violates this fundamental principle and if the matter is not pressed enough now for results the results must come sooner or later.

As to local stations such as universities and business houses broadcasting they should arrange their stuff so as to work in harmony and they should also be very careful not to use so much time as to destroy the enjoyment of other stations over the United States. For example, if Dreamland wants to give us a little jazz for an hour on two occasions a week we believe no one would object to that much, but should they run night after night and take up most of the evenings then they are creating a prejudice against that which they wish to advertise.

In conclusion let me say: "Parents and kids please, please, please." Local stations co-operate and limit so that thousands may really enjoy their radio sets.

Here and There

What Of The Missouri Valley?

(Kansas City Star.)

Here is a vast stretch of the United States, the Missouri Valley, rich in resources, unlimited in its possibilities of development, entitled without reservation to the most prosperous type of life, to mills, to factories, to varied industry, to profitable farming, to big cities.

Over there, farther to the east, is a smaller and a less fortunate section in the matter of resources, but a section that has gone far in its development, largely because of its proximity to the seacoast and its long established habit of fattening itself at the expense of the extensive and fertile territory of the middle west. One part of that section, New York in particular, does not want this middle section of the United States to get the advantages of inland ports. So New York is opposing the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway project. With other sections of the east, New York is opposed to development of the Mississippi, the Missouri and other navigable rivers of the middle West.

What is the middle west going to do about it? Let the picture stand as it is, as it has been? Remain shackled by discriminatory rail rates and inaccessibility to seagoing carriers? Is the middle west satisfied to remain a sleeping giant and denied its just rights and natural growth?

This section need not so remain. It would be unlike the region to do so. Three are programs for waterway development in the middle west that call for support. If they are supported by this region, regardless of what other parts of the country may do, they can be made operative. It will take a fight. But the middle west is not a quitter.

Minerva's Mail

Take Your Troubles to Minerva

Materialistic Love.

Dear Minerva: I am a young woman of twenty-six, am a business woman and earn a fairly good salary, have an attractive apartment that I share with two congenial girl friends, see all the good shows that come to town, have good clothes and altogether get along very well. When I was nineteen I thought I was very much in love with a man and because of his religion my parents opposed the match so we were parted. Since that I have never had the same thrill of love with any man though I have had many wonderful men friends.

Now Minerva, even though I am so comfortable and independent, married life appeals to me far more than the bachelor life. There is a very splendid man who wants to marry me right at the present time. He is a few years older than I am, has a very responsible and lucrative profession, and gives me all that I could ask for in companionship.

The only reason I have not married him, or promised to marry him, is because I do not feel that strange glow, or thrill that seems associated with love, and which I felt in my early experience with love. I am happy as happy can be when with him. And I would be lonesome to be away from him. But I do not count minutes when we are separated. I do not sit in a trance wrapped in a rosy haze forgetful of work and surroundings. Yet that is the way I spent my day in school when I was so desperately in love years ago. This is really a more comfortable feeling. For, as I remember, my feelings were always being hurt about something before. I demanded so much in the intensity of my ardor and was never satisfied with the attentions I received. Now I seem not to demand anything and am contentad with attentions as they come.

I think sometimes that I am only materialistic because of the training of late years, that love would never come to me in a whirl as it did before. This is a materialistic age and perhaps love should mean quiet, companionship and material comforts.

I think I shall probably marry this man, just drift into a comfortable, companionable sort of marriage.

But I wonder, after all, if I am right in doing so. I wonder what love is anyway, and if I am losing love from life if I marry without the sure, blinding knowledge that love is mine.—ANNE

A. I believe you love this man in the deep, lasting, mature way. When you were nineteen your enthusiasms were all more intense. You were at that romantic, sentimental age, when a rosy cloud hung very low and settled early on whatever object toward which you might happen to direct your sentimental interest. One reason why a youthful marriage is hazardous is because youths are so much more likely to be in love with love than with the individual.

"What is love?" you ask. That is a very large question. Many definitions are given for love, and still I might say that the question remains unanswered.

Voltaire defines love as "the embroidery of the imagination upon the stuff of nature." This is a good definition of that "early love" of yours.

What might be called a materialistic definition of love is that given by John A. Moroso, author of "The Stumbling Herd," "The City of Silent Men," etc. He says:

"Love is the impulse which eventually fulfills the purpose of the sex—procreation. Passion's slaking is the immediate reward for the surrender of the body as the temple of new life. Women, giving more, love more than men, love with greater ardour, greater intensity.

"In the golden haze of the first emotion, following adolescence, lovers do not realize the force that drives them into each other's arms and for that purpose is their affection. The first kiss and the first embrace seem to share in the great holiness which clothes all beauty. And so they do. The impulse gradually tightens its grip until the epithalamium is sung and it is time to make the baby clothes.

"Love does not die with the first child. Sometimes it is diverted and mates seek other mates, unconsciously the members of the broken partnership seeking again the thrill, the divine joy of that first contact. They can no more seize it again than they can seize the snowflakes on the river, which are for a moment seen, then gone forever.

"Love between two people may die the death, but whatever new loves may be found in search of recompense those who have loved will carry in their hearts hidden memories of the old."

Questions Answered Briefly.

Ethel: You certainly do wash your hair too often. A strong soap and too much use of water on the hair will rob it of its life and luster, which is supplied by the proper flow of oil. I suggest you massage your scalp once a day with the following astringent:

Cocoanut oil, 3 ounces, tincture of nux vomica, 4½ drams, jamaica of bay rum, 4 ounces; oil of bergamot, 40 drops. This will supply the scalp with oil and also invigorate the roots of the hair.

Vivian: If you have such a few blackheads I would not advise going to a professional for treatment. After the usual creaming, washing and brush rubbing at night, follow this plan and correct the conditions quickly: Bathe the face for a long time in a strong solution of borax, then dry gently. Follow this by a rosewater bath and let this finally dry on the skin. Then you may use the ice rub. A few nights of friction and this kind of treatment and the blemishes should be easy to rub off.

Investigation Shows Third Internationale Spreading Red Doctrine.

Russian Minister Reported to Have Worked Way to United States.

(Copyright, 1923 by International News Service.)

BERLIN, Dec 28 — A Russian clergyman, named Wredenski, has been sent to the United States by the third internationale to conduct red propaganda, it was learned by International News Service today after a serching investigation of the ramfications of the Russian propaganda system.

It was established beyond doubt that George Tchitcherin, commissair for foreign affairs in the soviet government at Moscow has repeated iron-clad orders that no one connected with the Russian diplomatic or consular services in any capacity whatsoever may directly or indirectly engage in communist propaganda.

Tchitcherin instructed the Russian envoys to direct their entire attention to legitimate government business so that no foreign government could accuse the soviet of using its diplomatic machinery for propaganda purposes.

Continue Efforts.

However, the third internationale is still feverishly backing propaganda for a world revolution. Every conceivable means of publicity is being employed by the officials of the third internationale.

A branch, specializing in propaganda in England and America has established headquarters at Bonn on the Rhine, in the occupied area of Germany. It is conducted by a Russian named Rarmarkovski.

It was Rarmarkovski who gave directions to the clergyman, Wredenski, as to how to proceed in the United States.

Wredenski is understood to have worked his way to New York as a steward upon a steamship.

Music Notes

Denial that the Star Spangled Banner is unsingable as frequently is charged together with a laying of the blame for sluggish performances of it upon poor leadership was made at a musical round table of musicians in New York City recently

If any audience does not sing the American national anthem well it is because the leader has not made the proper manner of approach to the singing of it in the opinion of the musicians Instances were cited of occasions on which the leader had given such an unsatisfactory announcement of the anthem that the response of the audience was necessarily lukewarm

The leaders approach to the Star Spangled Banner said one speaker should at once set a mood of reverence for the song is a symbol of our love of country Such an introduction is necessary in order to sound the emotional key note of the singing

In every such approach to the singing of a song said another the leader should draw upon the elements of salesmanship of which the chief means are experience example testimony and argument Of these the weakest approach is argument In introducing the Star Spangled Banner the leader should show forth his own experience as to the emotional appeal of the anthem and he may also give testimony as to that appeal Best of all he should demonstrate by his example what the Star Spangled Banner means to him He should not lecture the audience as to why they should respect the anthem for the public dislikes being told what it ought to feel Reverence for the anthem as a symbol should emanate from him irrespective of whether or not he believes it to be perfect as a song How should he achieve that effect of emanation First let him pause in the continuity of the program Let him wait until every eye and ear is at attention Then in the hush that ensues he may announce the song Following another brief pause he makes a gesture of reverence and begins directing the singing of the anthem

Another person brought up the instance of a song leader who is never especially dignified upon the platform and who approaches the Star Spangled Banner in a brisk energetic manner which nevertheless gets results in the form of enthusiastic singing The concensus of opinion was that the leader should use the reverent approach was most desirable

There are various wrong ways to announce the national anthem the assemblage agreed The worst way is the casual lackadaisical approach Sometimes the leader is guilty of this But more often the presiding officer who takes the announcing out of the directors hand Another inept approach is the dictatorial method One of those present brought up an example of that method in the case of the song leader at the republican convention in Chicago who said We will now sing The Lon Long Trail The audience just wouldnt So it is when the leader says premptorily We will now sing Star Spangled Banner The American public refuses to be led so literally

America will in a few years be the music centre of the world according to Mrs Frank A Seiberling of the National Federation of Music Clubs which met in New York recently And by that I do not mean she said the great cities like New York which already provide each session a list of artists unrivalled in the world today I mean that the great masses of the people even in the rural districts are rapidly becoming interested in serious music and are teaching their children to love it so that I think one is justified in saying that our country is by way of becoming the music center of the world

It is true that this will come about largely as a result of conscious education and of deliberate effort on the part of the people to acquire a knowledge and appreciation of the best there is in the field of music We have not the background and traditions that have in Europe fostered for centuries a love for all the arts But this will not prevent us from acquiring a very appreciative knowledge of music if only the means and incentive are present

It is to provide this incentive to the study of music among the people at large that the national federation has decided upon a four year course of study which it is offering this year for the first time The course has been planned by William Arms Fisher and written by four of the greatest authorities in the American music world of the day Karl W Gehrkens of the Oberlin Conservatory of Music Daniel Gregory Mason Edgar Stillman Kelly and Clarence G Hamilton The course is not designed to offer practical training in voice or instrument but rather a broad education in the fundamentals of music in the various forms of musical composition historical development and the instruments

In addition to this course of study intended for our members Mrs Seiberling continued we shall continue to co operate with the schools in fostering a love and appreciation of music among the children The results so far have been most gratifying We have held music memory contests in many schools throughout the country when prizes have been given for the best showing in the recognition of isolated bits of a number of standard musical compositions selected from the many with which the students had previously been made familiar In this work we use talking machine records player pianos school orchestras or in some of the larger cities large professional organization Only music of the highest character is taught in this way and the interest and proficiency shown by the children proves that there is an inherent love for the best music in a majority of the [illegible]

Perhaps the most gratifying result of these contests is that the parents of the children too become interested Families buy and exchange with each other records of the selections taught with the result that their standard of taste is gradually improved Considering the progress already made we have high hopes of realizing our ambition of making America the music centre of the world

That musical bells reach back to the mists of antiquity is pointed out by London Ideas which says

Man made bells before he learned to write These first bells were vessels of clay which gave off a pleasing resonance when struck

Aboriginal people used bells as ornaments Moses Isiah and the prophets Zachariah mention the use of bells as anklets on the feet of women as yokes for horses and in temples

The Greeks decked their triumphal chariots with bells The Romans used them to call the citizens to temple and forum Paulinus of Nola an Italian bishop first used bells in Christmas worship

About 400 A D shortly after the time of Paulinus church towers became general in Europe Two hundred years later a Papal bull specified that every church should have a bell

The curfew bell the angelus bell and the passing bell are part of bell [illegible] bells ushered in the French revolution The great bell of St Mark s Venice and others equally famous were alarums

What To Eat — Where To Get It — How To Cook It

"DESTINY'S CHILD"

By HAZEL DEYO BATCHELOR

Copyright, 1923, by Public Ledger Company

Courtney Herrington induces Lorry Grenville to marry him, just after she has discovered that Tom Ransome, the man she really loves, is unworthy. Lorry does not love her husband, and his love for her is so intense that it frightens her. After her marriage she still yearns over Tom, and the knowledge that she is to have a child fills her with rebellion. When Courtney realizes that he has failed to win his wife's love, he shuts his own love up in his heart, and tells Lorry he is going away on a business trip.

CHAPTER XXVII.

Leave-Taking.

To make up for the gladness that Courtney must have seen in her eyes when he announced that he was leaving town the next day, Lorry professed interest in his plans for departure.

She went into his room with him and hovered over his suitcase, she herself took his shirts from the drawer, sorted his handkerchiefs, saw that he had everything he needed.

In doing these simple domestic things, Lorry forgot herself. Now that Courtney was going away; now that it would not be necessary to see him day in and day out, she could afford to be gracious but as Courtney watched her absorbed face his heart was filled with bitterness. He knew only too well what had prompted her to such an unusual display of wifeliness. She gloried in his going away, and for a moment she had not been able to disguise the truth and gladness had leaped up in her eyes, stabbing him to the heart.

How had he failed so lamentably in making her happy? Had it been his unspeakable want of her, would it have been better if he had waited?

And then breaking in on his thoughts came Lorry's question. "How long will you be gone."

She tried to keep the eagerness out of her voice, but somehow in spite of her it crept in. She wanted so much to know how long she could feel free; how long it would be before he swooped down on her life again."

"Two or three weeks," he returned watching her closely.

"If you don't mind, I think I'll go home," she went on. "It will be so good to get back to my old room," her voice gathered eagerness in her anticipation, "just as though, just as though—" she faltered.

"Just as though you had never married me," he supplied evenly. "Is that it?"

It was the truth. Lorry didn't want to stay in the apartment where she was reminded of him. She did not want to be where his voice had echoed, where his indomitable presence seemed to fill every room, even her own. The color came and went in her cheeks. He was making it so hard for her.

"I'm sorry, but I don't want you to go home," he said crisply. "Ask your mother to come here if you like, or any one else, it doesn't matter."

"But why?" she protested, "what possible difference can it make to you? I don't understand."

"I'd like to feel that you're here," he persisted stubbornly. "This is our home, yours and mine, you belong in it."

"I see," she spoke the words very slowly. "I think I understand."

She sat for a moment in silence on the edge of the bed, her eyes looking off into space, and in that moment it seemed to Courtney as though he could not leave her. Suppose something happened to her while he was gone; imagination caught hold of him, firing his blood. How he loved her, and he was voluntarily giving her up, putting himself out of her life for long, dreary days, in the hope that realization might come to her during his absence.

"You won't mind doing that much for me," he ventured, "keeping the home fires burning, in the slang phrase of the day." His mouth twisted into a smile.

She slipped from the bed, keeping her face turned away from him, and went toward the door, but as she reached it he spoke.

"I'm leaving early tomorrow morning. I'll breakfast down town, so I won't see you again."

"Oh," she said tentatively, twirling the doorknob with nervous fingers. And then he was coming toward her, his arms were around her, his dark eyes were looking down in her frightened ones, and he held her so for a long moment. Then he touched her hair softly with his lips, and let her go.

Hay Market Dull Says Government Weekly Bulletin

Country loadings of hay during the week December 17 to 22, and receipts at most markets, were of small volume while unseasonably mild weather, together with the holiday season restricted the demand for hay and general dullness prevailed in the market during the week, according to the report of the market, made public here today by the United States department of agriculture.

The government report, follows in part:

"In the eastern consuming markets timothy prices held at practicaly the same level as at the close of the previous week, but the lower grades which constituted a large per centage of the receipts, continued dull and were difficult to sell at most markets even at wide discounts under the prices of the best hay.

"The dullness in the central western distributing markets was attributed to the nearness of the inventory period during which dealers desire to keep their stocks as low as possible. Local dealers in most markets apparently have sufficient hay in stores to meet their current needs and feeders were not buying large amounts because of the mild and open weather. Receipts were equal to, or larger than, the demand in the principal markets with the exception of Chicago, where there was not sufficient good timothy hay available for the current needs of the market.

"Demand was generally dull for prairie hay but prices held fairly steady at around $15 per ton in the central western market.

"Southwestern ranges were snow-covered during the week but grazing conditions were fairly satisfactory on the western and northwestern ranges."

Western Leaguer Comes For Conference With Lincoln Men

BALL BOOSTERS IN POW-WOW TONIGHT

Lincoln Men Scheduled to Confer With Club Owner Of Western League.

BY 'CY' SHERMAN

Fate of Lincoln in a baseball way is to be decided at an early date. Local fandom recently has been debating a three cornered topic whether to seek membership in the Western league taking the place of Sioux City to tie in with the proposed interstate loop a project launched by Sioux City men or to stand pat with the Nebraska State loop in which Lincoln men have held franchise during the past two seasons in the diamond pastime.

First step in the direction of a choice between the three leagues probably will be taken at a baseball pow wow scheduled for Friday night at the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce. Lee Keyser head of the Des Moines Western league club and member of the special league committee named to select a successor to Sioux City is to come to Lincoln late today for a conference with local fans and business men. The Des Moines magnate is due in the Nebraska capital Friday afternoon and following a drive about town will meet the baseball boosters at 7 30.

Local Clubs Name Committee

Five local organizations—Chamber of Commerce and Rotary Kiwanis Lions and Pathfinders clubs—have appointed special committees to confer with Mr Keyser in a discussion of the problems involved in reviving Western league ball in the Nebraska capital. Personnel of the five committees is as follows

Chamber of Commerce—C T Spangler Leo Soukup and Trev Gillaspie

Rotary club—Roy Capron Orville Kingery Dee Liche and Lee Burroughs

Kiwanis club—Arthur Dobson W S Davidson and Carl Stein

Lions club—Joe Ager Ed O Shea and M Clark

Pathfinders club—Lloyd McMasters Albert Nebelseck and Henry Brehm

Magnates Come Next Month

Private advices to The Star from Des Moines are to the effect that Mr Keyser's present trip is not for the specific purpose of presenting a definite proposition on the part of the league but to feel out the sentiment and the report back to the committee which is reputed to be planning a visit to Lincoln early in January. The full committee includes League President A R Tearney of Chicago James Crawford of Tulsa and Mr Keyser. Tonight's preliminary conference however may contribute materially toward realization of Lincoln's undoubted ambition to regain membership in the Western loop. Unquestionably 100 percent attendance by the five local committees would give the Western league movement a decided impetus impressing the Des Moines magnate with the belief that Lincoln is more than merely interested—that it is prepared to act and actually get somewhere in the baseball world.

Omaha Delivers Its Knock

But while Lincoln is taking the initial step in negotiating with the representative of the Western league an Omaha newspaper the Bee comes to bat with a rap at Lincoln's aspirations. According to the Bee Lincoln is a dead one in baseball and the Western league magnates are just wasting their time in discussing or considering the capital city as successor to Sioux City. The Bee enjoys its little knock as well that its views are republished here in order that Lincoln may know how it stands with its Nebraska neighbor.

Doomed to Slow Death

As far as Lincoln is concerned the Western league can place a franchise in that city but first must meet the demands of the owners of the State league club.

It is very doubtful if Lincoln could support Western league ball. It died a slow death in the Capital City some years ago and some say that it would be only a matter of three or four years until the league would be looking for another city should Lincoln get in the league this year.

The Western league will have to kick in with an exorbitant price for the privilege of replacing the Nebraska State league in the Nebraska capital.

Fall of playing the orphan franchise in any other city than Lincoln stopped suddenly. All you hear now is Lincoln Lincoln. We opine that if one of the thriving southern cities say in Oklahoma was placed in the league everything would sail along kayoe. But that is not for us to decide. However President Tearney and his committee will probably monkey around until time comes for drafting the schedule and then they will wake up and realize that a city is needed in which to place the Sioux City franchise.

And while this is going on President Tearney is busy running his business in Chicago. It seems that the Western league is a minor thing in President Tearney's life although he is paid a nice salary to handle the affairs of the circuit.

SWEDISH CHAMP ON WORLD JAUNT

Europe's Swimming Flash Heads For Australia; May Visit U. S

NEW YORK Dec 28 Arne Borg champion of Sweden and greatest all around swimmer in Europe credited with a long string of world's free style records recently sailed for Australia there to take part in the national championships and match contests in January and February.

Borg made it known before his departure that he intends to visit the United States after fulfilling his engagement at the Antipodes. He is quoted as stating that he plans to land in this country in the spring and remain here until June when he will go to Paris for the Olympic games.

Australians Not So Slow

Apparently the young Norseman has made no definite arrangements to compete while here so there is no telling whether he proposes or will have the opportunity to meet in contest the leading stars including Johnny Weissmuller Chicago tank star who holds more world records than any other swimmer in history. But the outcome of his races in Australia will be awaited with keen anticipation for they should afford good evidence of what to expect of him at the Olympics next summer.

So far notwithstanding his many notable achievements Borg never has measured strokes with opponents of international rating and the competitions in Australia will mark his first real tests against worthy rivals. Among the great swimmers slated to try conclusions with him are Andrew Charlton of Sydney world's record holder at 880 yards Frank Beaurepaire of Melbourne who displayed standard speed at one mile in Honolulu last year and Moss Christie of Sydney victor over Charlton lately and one of the fastest milers in the field at present. Evidently the youthful Swede will not lack strong opposition.

Best of Europe's Swimmers

Borg has swept everything before him in Europe during the last two years. Though at his best from 440 yards upwards he has performed well at the shorter distances also and proved himself to be one of the foremost all around free style swimmers ever developed. Some of his outstanding performances are a 100 meter sprint in 1 01 200 meters in 2 18 400 meters in 5 06 and 880 yards in 10 37 4 5. These and other striking exploits have led Europeans to look upon him as the favorite candidate for the Olympic 1 500 meter fixture and a formidable contender in the 400 meter event.

It is of interest that Borg has been a close student of American methods and uses our standard stroke the six beat double trudgeon crawl.

Red and Black Cage Management Books Double Basket Bill

The roster of alumni tossers includes McIntyre Olds Halland McPherson Baker King Miller McBride and Krieg. The curtain raiser is scheduled to get under way at 7 p m while the Lincoln Alliance game is dated for 7 45. Bob Russell former University of Nebraska basketeer has been selected as Saturday night referee.

No Booze In Jug, Noting But Water, Grand Island Says

(Associated Press)

GRAND ISLAND Neb Dec 28—Water passed between the Grand Island football players in the Thanksgiving game in a jug was confused with liquor passed in a bottle and the confusion led Dr C A Phillips Hastings dentist led to false charges before the state board of control of Nebraska high school athletics according to further details of Grand Island's defense given out here today.

Affidavits of Dean North of the Grand Island Baptist college Mr Marsh the man who carried the water Dr Earle Farnsworth and others entirely exploded the liquor charge against the team. It is significantly set forth that Dr Phillips [illegible]

[illegible] school is now ready to have its hearing in all earnestness and to resist the request to be ousted from the circuit.

FIRPO FIZZLE AS ARGENTINE HERO

Home Folks, Once So Proud of Hairy Husky, Hand Him Cold Turndown.

Citizenship Episode Causes Trouble and Wild Bull Longs for U. S. A.

BUENOS AIRES Dec 28—Luis Firpo the demon angel of the Argentine has done a lucifer tailspin out of the clouds of Latin American adulation on which he rode just before and just after his title bout with Heavyweight Champion Jack Dempsey and the bright thing left on his horizon now is the ship that is going to take him back to the hospitable United States on March 1.

Before he shakes the dust of his native Pampas off his feet however the big fighter hopes to regain some of his lost popularity by demonstrating his fistic prowess before the home folks in a scrap with some Argentino. Any old Americano will do. A group of Argentine society women directing one of the best known church charities has offered 10 000 pesos the equivalent of $3 000 to any North American who will come to Buenos Aires before Feb 1 and exchange clouts with the Wild Bull—who has agreed to give his services free.

Eager to Get Back to U S

That over with Luis will embark for America—a land flowing with milk and honey which was the scene of his rise from obscure poverty to semi millionairedom. This time—who knows?—Firpo may start and through with an application for American citizenship.

It was his first venture into the United States naturalization courts where he took out first papers as a compliment to the nation which had been such a lavish host to him that got Luis into hot water at home.

Right Away Pulled Boner

The first thing he did after his triumphal return to South America was to sell one Buenos Aires newspaper first publication rights to all statements all fight plans and all other news concerning his heroic self.

He had got away with that for awhile in the United States and made himself a nice addition to the old bank roll. But he overlooked the fact that he was coming home with a whole lot of explaining to do about that venture in naturalization. The result was that all the papers save the one which had tied him up with a contract promptly boycotted him and pretty soon he had dropped almost entirely out of the public eye. He was no longer a great national hero.

No Crowds Follow Luis Now

When he went out selling the American automobile whose agency he obtained while in the United States he was no longer followed by cheering crowds. A few curious and some hostile spectators gathered but there was no great huzzah.

Finally having got in Dutch with the newspapers Luis hit on the idea of telling South America by radio how it happened that he applied for United States citizenship and how he really didn't mean to do it at all. But somehow the explanation doesn't seem to go down. The home folks insist that he was on the point of forswearing allegiance to the Argentine for motives of selfinterest and only changed his plan because he found the move was doing him more harm than good.

Radio Scheme Big 'Bust

Meanwhile his voice halting stumbling hesitating meekly explaining goes out from the broadcasting station repeating phrase by phrase the whispered promptings of a friend who reads his lecture off to him. The prompter's whisper can be heard by radio fans as plainly as the demon Agel's louder echo.

As long as Firpo kept silent and used his two fists he was acquiring a reputation as a great pugilist. But as soon as he opened his mouth to explain the great naturalization fiasco he put both feet in it. And now he can't seem to get them out so he can hush.

Ritola In Olympic Games For Finland

NEW YORK Dec 28 Willie Ritola crack distance runner of the Finnish American Athletic club and holder of the national ten mile and cross country championships will represent his native country Finland in the Olympic games at Paris next year. He plans to sail to Finland January 4.

Grid Team Makes Three First Downs; Fails to Gain Inch

DETROIT Mich Dec 28—What is believed to rank as an unprecedented incident in football annals cropped out in a recent game between Detroit City and Hope Mich, college teams.

In the first period of the fracas the Hope aggregation had the ball for 16 consecutive downs without gaining an inch and without either of the elevens receiving a single penalty.

Immediately after the kickoff Hope recovered the ball on a fumble on the Detroit 25 yard line. The visitors then had the leather for 16 straight downs making three first downs and yet on the sixteenth attempt when the Hope punter fell back to kick he stood on his own 25 yard line 40 yards back of the place where the ball had originally been recovered. Here's how it happened.

On the first three plays Hope lost 10 yards. On the fourth down Detroit broke through and blocked the punt which however was recovered by the visitors. This gave them a first down. Practically the same thing was repeated twice more two additional kicks being blocked, with Hope recovering each time for a first down. The fourth attempt to punt was successful but by that time the Hope back had been thrown on 12 occasions for losses totalling 40 yards.

Menke Hints Zev's Success Proves His Trainer Lucky

BY FRANK G MENKE

(Copyright 1923 by King Features Syndicate Inc)

Is Sam Hildreth the greatest horse trainer in American history because of native ability—or simply because of unlimited bankroll backing?

Would Hildreth whose 40 Rancocas horses of 1923 won $436 000 have won within $350 000 of that sum if he had not been able to buy the greatest thoroughbreds in training?

Would Zev under any other training have won 12 out of 14 races and something like $272 000 in purses?

If Hildreth's training made Zev a world's record smasher why couldn't Hildreth's skill lift his other 39 horses to real heights?

If one deducts Zev's earnings from the Rancocas record of 1923 the result is $166 000 is the gross earnings for 39 horses—a trifle more than $4 000 winnings for each although each ran an average around eight races.

Backed By Sinclair's Roll

If all the Rancocas horses other than Zev had been mediocre animals then here might be an alibi for the Hildreth crowd in the fact that Sam's 39 could win only $166 000. But the point is that Hildreth blessed with Harry Sinclair's bankroll was able to buy the horses he regarded as among the greatest in America.

Hildreth had Grey Lag Little Chief Mad Hatter Kai Sang Knobble Flying Cloud Eaglet Brigadier Figel and many other fliers. Every horse in that group cost Sinclair thousands of dollars. Some cost far into the tens of thousands because Hildreth thought them worth the money—and Sinclair turned over the cash.

As far back as the turfist of today remembers Sam Hildreth has been a horse trainer. Fortune has been kind to him. In his earlier years he trained for August Belmont when the chairman of the Jockey club had a real racing stable—and ever was ready with the cash to maintain its greatness.

Hildreth Had Own Stable

When Belmont temporarily retired Hildreth went along and ran his own racing stable. He didn't have a big bankroll. Most of the horses he ran in his colors were youngsters he had purchased or veterans that had gone to him from the Belmont stable. And though these years when Hildreth did not have a million or two at his call Hildreth always finished far down in the list of winning owners.

Then came the day when Sinclair decided to get into the turf game and Hildreth became the trainer for his horses.

I want the best racing stable that I can get and that money will buy said Sinclair.

Then Hildreth became busy. He stepped into the horse market and bought every horse that was for sale. [illegible] He paid $30 000 for William A.—and the horse proved to be a bloomer.

Inchcape Rank Bloomer

He spent $150 000 for Inchcape and the horse never won more than a few thousand for the Sinclair stable.

Hildreth bought Grey Lag for about $60 000. He spent a reported $100 000 for purchase Knobble Kai Sang Little Chief—all were bought. So was Zev.

In 1922 Hildreth had many two year olds in his barn. None amounted to much in that season although Sinclair had spent big money to acquire them for Rancocas. Not one beyond Zev was worth while in 1923.

As the 1923 season began Hildreth had many great looking two year-olds readied up for the races. They had the benefit of all his teaching all his conditioning skill. But not a single one showed up in anything remotely approaching spectacular fashion. Most of them were terrible bloomers.

Therefore—

Answer This One

Did Zev become a world beater in 1923 because he was Hildreth trained—or simply because he is a wonderful horse and would have won 12 out of 14 races—perhaps 14 straight—for some other trainer?

After you answer that try this one.

Where would the Rancocas stable of 1923 have finished if it didn't have Zev and were forced to race only with the Hildreth yearlings instead of with horses trained to stardom by other men—and then sold to Hildreth and Sinclair.

Football Made Safe. Sane and Spectacular By Policy Of Rules Revision.

Game Less Hazardous Than in the Bygone Days Of Mass Formations.

(Associated Press)

ATLANTA, Ga Dec 28—No fundamental changes in football rules seem to be required according to the report of the rules committee made to the convention of the National Collegiate Athletic association today by E K Hall of Dartmouth chairman of the rules committee.

Mr Hall asserted that in the reports of his committee for the past three years the opinion has been expressed that no fundamental changes in the rules governing football seemed to be required and that nothing in the experience of last season has tended to alter that opinion.

On the contrary Mr Hall continued evidence continues to accumulate that the task the committee undertook some years ago of gradually through the medium of rules changing the game of American rugby football from one that was featuring a closed mass formation and probably too hazardous a game into an open running game free from unnecessary hazards has been practically accomplished.

The game has been made much safer he said. Injuries are fewer and less serious and there seems to be no inherent hazard in the game today beyond those which are inevitable in any sport.

Discusses Paddock Case

ATLANTA Ga Dec 28—General Palmer E Pierce president of National Collegiate Athletic association reviewed the accomplishments of the past year outlined the aims of the association and discussed the case of Charlie Paddock champion sprinter in his annual address before the convention of the organization in session here today.

He urged strict administration of the amateur law with particular reference to summer baseball.

One of the controversial matters to be discussed by the association during today's session he said will revolve around the unfortunate incident connected with Mr Paddock's participation in the University of Paris games last may General Pierce said.

He read considerable correspondence he had with officials of the Amateur Athletic Union which has barred Paddock from competing in this year's Olympic games and expressed the opinion that there may have been misunderstandings in connection with the case.

Outlining the growth of the association General Pierce said the organization is in a flourishing and healthy condition and that during 1923 the membership increased 10 per cent.

GIBBONS SET FOR GOTHAM INVASION

Aspires to Whirl at Firpo, But Latter Reserved For Champion Jack.

Nevertheless, St. Paul Boy Is Bent On Doing Business In New York Rings

BY DAVIS J WALSH

(International News Service)

NEW YORK Dec 28—If it were not for the fact that the boys are all set to gather the loose money Dempsey and Firpo left in New York last year it might not be bad business to throw some of that feed from Gibbons some of that Firpo diet just to see what would happen. Personally we believe that Gibbons would make the fur bearing citizen look even worse than he actually is.

Thomas himself declares that he would stop halt and otherwise discontinue the senor in a couple of rounds and asks among other things that he be permitted the opportunity. He will not get it.

Look Ahead to Harvest

The boys are fully aware that the Senor must be preserved as is until the harvest moon shines brightly on another Dempsey enterprise probably on or before July 4 next. They are shooting at a two million gate this time and that it's entirely too many dollars to trifle with. Firpo has one more big fight coming to him and it must be with Dempsey because the project is one of those form fitting made to your measure affairs and needs no ballyhoo.

Allowing the Senor to frolic with Gibbons Harry Wills or any of those rough playmates would be nothing less than ruinous. Therefore it shall not be.

Gibbons Showed His Stuff

It is pleasing to note however that Gibbons at last has decided to capitalize the fact that he is the only man this side of the hereafter to stay the limit with Dempsey since the latter became champion. Everything was against Gibbons at Shelby yet he hurt Dempsey on several occasions and proved that he is an uncommonly fast smart game and tough. We happen to be one of the innocents who think the Shelby fight was on the absolute plumb bob level. We also think Gibbons can do it again.

He is stepping out in the general direction of another chance in meeting Fred Fulton. Gibbons should cut Funny Fred down inside three rounds.

Tom Plans Gotham Invasion

After Freddie is picked up tenderly and borne away Gibbons intends to come to New York to see what can be done about the situation. He cannot hope to interfere with the Dempsey Firpo business which is in the bag but can find plenty of action in these parts provided Jack Renault Gene Tunney Mike McTigue and other worthies care to accommodate.

They talk of matching McTigue and Carpentier for the light heavyweight championship of the world and then bringing on Tunney to meet the winner. Gibbons a light heavyweight could take the three of them in one week and it might not be a sour idea if he joined the merry throng at that.

The title in question foisted Carpentier into a bout with Dempsey and a small fortune. Gibbons if at all impressive in winning it might do likewise.

Pass Not Used Often Enough

BY SOL METZGER

What percentage of forward passes are successful in football? No records are available giving this information. At least every team and coach has to find this out for himself and then it will be quite apparent that the percentage of successful passes varies according to the strength of every opponent met in the matter of breaking up the overhead attack.

We had some interesting records on the success and failure of the forward pass with Washington and Jefferson one season. A few will suffice to show the impossibility of figuring out a general average. In an early game with West Virginia Wesleyan eleven out of seventeen forward passes were completed for an average gain of something like eight yards for the seventeen attempts. In one of the big games later on three out of ten forward passes were successful.

Success Not Consistent

Followers of football can get all sorts of conflicting statistics on the forward pass. West Virginia completed every one tried against Princeton in the first five minutes of their game in 1919 scoring three touchdowns. Thereafter this method of attack was a failure.

The great handicap the forward pass has faced is that few coaches have used it except as a last resort. Harvard did so against Princeton a few years back and tied the score in the closing minutes of play. On the other hand there is abundant evidence that a similar last minute resort to passing has defeated the team attempting it.

Practice Will Perfect Pass

Until the pass is used as a weapon of attack just as is the line plunge or end run it will suffer in comparison with other plays. No team can employ any style of attack successfully unless it uses it all the time. Haughton's idea of football and Lou Young is using it at Penn is to have few plays but to drill the men in them perfectly. Unless that is done with the overhead game the overhead attack will never get a fair trial.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.

Heavy tax selling in the low priced issues which resulted in a suspension of several pool operations, gave the stock market a reactionary appearance during the forenoon. Offerings were fairly well absorbed and prices snapped nuward again later when a wave of buying orders, particularly for United States Steel came into the market. Sales approximated 1,050,000 shares.

Irregular price changes took place at the opening of today's stock market. Most of the oils displayed a firm tone, but selling pressure was again in evidence in a number of specialties. Corn Products dropped 1½.

Losses exceeded gains in the early dealings, Davison Chemical extending its loss to 2 points, and Tobacco Products, Schulte, Cuyamel Fruit, American Woolen, American Ice and Famous Players dropping a point or more.

Foreign exchanges opened firm.

Buying support for the pivotal shares restrained speculative selling to a large extent during the morning, although prices of most stocks ruled slightly below yesterday's final quotations. There were a few outstanding weak spots. Kresge selling 10 points below its previous sale of a week ago, Nash Motors dropping 3 and Corn Products 2½. Indications of tax selling were again in evidence. Chicago and Northwestern referred dropping 1 point to a new low record for the year. United States Rubber first preferred, was strong in response to an increase in prices and U. S. Alcohol and Standard Oil of New Jersey were well bought at higher. United States Realty issues also were conspicuously strong. A renewal rate of 5½ per cent for call money reflected the further withdrawal of bank balances by interior institutions in anticipaton of year end requrements.

Forcing down of several of the independent steels and leather stocks, as well as half a dozen of the oil shares, toG levels 1 to 2 points under yesterday's close caused increased selling pressure after midday. Offerings were largely restricted to the industrials. The market subsequently stiffened slightly.

The closing was irregular. Shorts covered freely during the afternoon when a bullish demonstration was staged in United States Steel Common which carried it above 99. Corn Products broke more than 5 points in speculative disappointment over the failure of the directors to ncrease the regular dividend, but recovered art of its loss before the close.

GRAIN MARKETS.

CHICAGO, Ill., Dec. 28.

WHEAT—Unexpected upturns in quotations at Liverpool led to something of a gain here by wheat values today during the early dealings. Absence of selling pressure counted also as a bullish influence. The opening, which varied from unchanged figures to ⅛c higher, May $1.06½@1.06¾, and July $1.05⅝@1.05¾, was followed by a slight general rise before the market began to recede.

Subsequently a fresh ascent carried the market higher than before but another reaction set in. Bulls took the view that a betterment of prices would be witnessed with the opening of the new year. The close was steady at a shade to ⅜c net advance, May $1.06¾@⅞@1.06⅞ and July $1.05⅝@¾.

CORN—Smallness of rural offerings of corn gave strength to the corn market and to oats as well. Messages from Iowa and Nebraska indicated that virtually no corn was being moved. After opening ⅛ to ⅜c higher, May 73¾@73⅞c, corn continued to hold at yesterday's finish or above.

Commission houses that acted on standing orders to sell May at 74c, checked the advance. Prices closed steady at a shade to ⅛c net higher, May 73¾@73⅞c.

OATS—Oats started ⅛c higher, May 44⅞c, and remained near to the initial figures.

PROVISIONS—Provisions were steady in line with the hog market.

INSTALL OFFICERS OF KIWANIS CLUB

George L. Towne was installed as president, E. C. Folsmo, vice president and C. W. Watson, secretary of the Lincoln Kiwanis club, at a meeting Friday noon at the chamber of cmmeorce. A. A. Dobson was installed as district trustee.

Reviewing the work of the Kiwanis club during the past year, President Sam C. Waugh told the members that in his opinion it was not the organization f mreo clubs that was needed in Nebraska. More thought should be given to those clubs already organized, he said, especially those clubs which are having a hard time making the progress they should.

Discussing the policies of Kiwanis Mr. Waugh spoke of the work of the club in the interests of underprivileged children. He said that there was no one angle to Kiwanis work from which it was possible to derive as much benefit and as much satisfaction as advancing the interests of the children, more particularly the underprivileged children.

ZEV IS KINGPIN OF TURF SEASON

Sinclair's Sensational Colt Clearly Entitled to the Highest Honors.

After pursuing the beaten path of placid mediocrity for several seasons, the sport of thoroughbred racing suddenly broke out in 1923 in a rash of pulse-quickening match races, beginning with the Zev-Papyrus international affair at Belmont park and ending with the race in which Zev beat In Memoriam by a nostril, if at all. Out of this pot-pourri Zev emerged the proclaimed champion three-year-old of the American turf, with only the French colt, Epinard, to dispute his claim to world honors.

Zev's Title Clear.

There is no denying the fact, however, that Zev's title in this country is clear and sound. The Sinclair star won eleven out of thirteen races during the season, including the Kentucky Derby, the Withers, the Belmont, the Lawrence Realization and the international match race with Papyrus, brought over from England behind a great ballyhoo, but beaten off six lengths by the American champion.

Just before the big race Admiral Grayson's My Own, which had cleaned up at Saratoga, and stepped a tidy mile and a half in winning the national sweepstakes, contested Zev's right to be named as the American entry. Rumors that the Sinclair star was unsound prompted the Jockey club selection committee to summon My Own to the scene of the race, but at the last minute the committee took note of the mud-scourged track and named Zev, a notoriously good mudder.

Zev Easy Winner.

Its judgment was vindicated when Earl Sande, America's premier jockey, took Zev to the front in the first eighth and stepped the mile and a half to an ever-increasing lead over Papyrus, ridden by Steve Donoghue, England's premier jockey. Sixty thousand persons witnessed the great event, and a purse of $100,000 was divided on an 80-20 basis.

Subsequently, Zev and My Own were brought together in the Latonia championship, at a mile and three-quarters, but, unfortunately, In Memoriam was an added starter and the western horse proceeded to run the pair of them silly in the final half mile, beating Zev by five lengths and My Own by fifteen. That was the end of My Own.

Zev, however, came back in a special match with In Memoriam at a mile and a quarter and earned a disputed verdict, the finish being so close that many thought the Weldemann colt had won.

The only races that Zev failed to win during the season were the Latonia championship and the Preakness, being kicked at the post in the latter event, and declining to be a party to the further proceedings.

Champion Winner.

At the end of the season, Zev's winnings in purses amounted to some $275,000, breaking the record of Man o' War and all American horses. The wrold's record is $280,675, held by Isinglass, the famous English stake winner; but it is epected that Zev, barring a breakdown, will top this total next season without trouble.

Sande rode Zev in all of his winning races and earned his title of champion rider, but at the close of the season, sixteen-year-old Ivan Parke, apprentice rider, was chasing the king-pin merrily.

Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt's Sarazen was easily the best two-year-old of the season, but had to beat Happy Thoughts, a filly, in a match race at Pimlico before he was accepted as such.

The season of 1923 will go down in the books as one of the greatest in racing history.

Says Science May Soon Change Sex Characteristics

CINCINNATI, O., Dec. 28. — Science in the near future will be in a position not only to predetermine but to reverse or modify sex or other bodily or mental characteristics, Dr. Oscar Riddle, of the research staff of the Carnegie station for experimental evolution at Cold Springs Harbor, N. Y., told the American society of zoologists today.

Dr. Riddle told of the history of complete sex reversal observed in a female dove, which, because of a tuberculosis infection, affecting the spleen and liver, became a male with all male characteristics.

"The scientific interest and importance of the demonstration can, however, scarcely be exaggerated," he continued, "since the result clearly indicates that the hereditary basis of no bodily or mental characteristic may be considered assorrevocably fixed and uncontrollable."

"It is next to impossible to marry in the theatrical business," said Wood.

delays in American courts. Admitting there are delays, and unnecessary ones, the speaker charged attorneys with being responsible to a great degree, declaring that in his own experience he had found where a lawyer desired to expedite a case he seldom has trouble doing so. He attributed another reason for delay to the silly sentimentality that applauds the acquittal of every good looking she-murderer, and commends the homicide of every man who invokes the so-called 'unwritten law.'"

In criminal cases the mills of justice "grind slow," but they "grind sure," Mr. Holmes said. Pointing out that the people of America, especially those of the larger cities are a "mixture of races such as exists to a like degree nowhere else in the world, and that we have mingled our blood with peoples—many of whom are morally and physically debased, and whose offspring in many cases are no doubt ofttimes debased," the speaker challenged his hearers to deny he was justified in surmising that a large proportion of the major crimes in the United States are committed by persons of foreign birth or extraction.

Reviewing the rise and fall of the German government under the rule of monarchists whose belief was that the nation's subjects should be influenced and controlled by the government, and not the government by the citizen, as in America, Judge Holmes pictured the chaotic conditions "on the stage where kaisers were wont to strut."

Constitution Leads to Victory.

Declaring that the American constitution has been "tried by blood and fire, and the even greater peril of insiduous attack," that it has brought to the nation power and prosperity, and that it contains within itself elements of new growth, Judge Holmes said that guided by it our future leads us on through long ages to the final victory of liberty and law.

Closing his address Mr. Holmes urged every lawyer to choose these words of Abraham Lincoln as his guide:

"Let reverence for the law be breathed by every mother to the lisping babe that prattles on her lap; let it be taught in the schools, seminaries and colleges; let it be written in primers, spelling books, and almanacs; let it be preached from the pulpits and proclaimed in legislative halls, and enforced in halls of justice; let it become the political religion of the nation.'"

Friday evening the members of the state bar association will be entertained at a smoker given by the Lancaster County Bar association at the University club. Checking Unpaid Car Line Taxes

State Treasurer Robinson and Bookkeeper Davey of his office are making up a tabulation of delinquent taxes owing by car line companies to te state of Nebraska. Some of these have failed to pay anything since the law governing the method of their assessment was passed in 1919. Others are delinquent for one or two years back.

Car lines companies are assessed at the average tax rate for the entire state, and the state gets the entire revenue from them. The average rate in 1922 was 16 mills. Over 100 of them are on the list of delinquents out of a total of 300 doing business in Nebraska. Most of the amounts are small, but the aggregate may run up to $20,000 or more.

The Union Tank Car Co., which is a Standard Oil subsidiary, paid in over $31,000 a few weeks ago as its 1923 tax(which was more than twice as much as it contributed a year ago.

The companies which owe the state will be notified by Treasurer Robinson topay up, and if they fail to do so by February 1 distress warrants will be issued against any rolling stock or other property which they may have in Nebraska, to be sold under execution for the taxes due.

BEDBUG'S BITE IS NOT AN ACCIDENT

Labor Commissioner Rules Against Workman Who Seeks Compensation.

Claimed to Have Been Bitten While Sleeping On a Steamboat.

William Alexander, claiming disability as the result of a bedbug bite received while sleeping on a steamboat when in the employ of the Woods Brtohers construction company, was denied compensation in a decision Friday morning by L. B. Frye, stae commissioner of labor.

Commissioner Frye contended that an accident is an unexpectel, or unforseen event happening violently ad suddenly, and producing at the time objective symptoms of an injury. The bite of the bedbug, the commissioner says, was not sufficient to awaken Alexander, and was not discovered until the following morning. Alexander, while subject to call, was not on duty at the time, the decision stiaes, adding that "It cannot be reasonably said to arise out of the employment."

The claim of Stanley Navracey pnay, asking compensation for injuries received in September, 1919, was dismissed under the statute of limitations. Navracey was a minor at the time the injuries were received. He sought damages through the courts, but the court ruled that he shold have applied to the compensation commissioner.

John Edward Dye, Omaha, was awarded $4.50 a week for 300 weeks and following that the sum of $3.04 each week for the remainde of his life, together with reasonable hospital and medical expnses.

Dye suffered partial disability, including impaired hearing and speech and traumatic hysteria, in an accident in the National Construction company's plant June 13, 1923.

C. E. Clayton, Lincoln, will receive $15 a week for sixty weeks, dating from May 4, 1923, because of partial disability to his left foot. The case was against Richardson nad company.

Award to Widow.

Eva Swanson, York, wife of Fritz Swanson, deceased, will receive $5,140 in weekly installments from the Nebraska Gas and Electric company because of the death of her husband.

Contest was made because Mrs. Swanson and her husband had separated before his death, but the time ad not been of sufficient length, the commissioner held.

LIFE AND CHARACTER READING.

We have now left behind us all influence of Sagittarius and enter upon the full life of Capricorn. This is the sign of the Goat, and the last sign of the Earth Triplicity. This sign governs the knees of the Grand Man and is a dry, earthy, feminine, nocturnal, southern, changeable, domestic sign. The higher attributes are absorption and inspiration.

This sign represents the dark side of the earth, the occult side of history, solitude and meditation. People born under it are deep thinkers. These people are generally short of stature and sometimes have very dark complexions and dark hair with exceedingly expressive eyes.

The Star Want Ads are at their best this week. If you are desirous of unloading a piece of real estate which you are not using, seek advice through the medium of The Star Want Ads.

BELIEVED MAN WAS ATTACKED

G. W. Olmstead Found In Dazed Condition On Street By His Daughter.

Still In Semi-Conscious Condition and Unable to Remember What Occurred.

G. W. Olmstead, 1122 D street, found by his daughter Thursday evening wandering in a dazed condition near Eleventh and F streets, possibly having been slugged, was reported by his daughter as recovering Friday noon. He was still in a semi-conscious condition, she said and could not remember what occurred, but seemed to think he had been attacked.

The daughter was on her way home, walking south on Eleventh street, when her attention was attracted by a man, apparently dazed. Investigation revealed that it was her father.

It was at first thought that he had been struck by an automobile. According to the girl the injured man says he did not fall. He sustained two severe cuts over the right eye, but his injuries are not thought to be serious.

His pocketbook and money were found along the street nearby

VENIZELOS WILL RETURN SHORTLY

Former Greek Premier To Depart From Paris Within Forty-Eight Hours.

(Associated Press.)

PARIS, Dec. 28.—A delegation sent from Greece to persuade Ex-Premier Venizelos to return home and help unravel Greece's political tangle, arrived here today. Its members were happy to discover that their mission had been accomplished for them by telegraph while they were on the way.

M. Venizelos' departure is set for some time within the next forty-eight hours.

His closest councilors say he is not sure how much he can do to help Greece out of her political confusion and they expect he will refuse to take the responsibility of forming a new government. He will give all the help he can without returning to power, it is forecast.

Begin Hunt For Missing Woman

DENVER, Colo., Dec. 28.—An extensive search is being conducted throughout the state by law officers for Mrs. Daniel Currier, 35 years old of Detroit, who disappeared from a Colorado Springs hotel, November 30 and of whom there is no trace.

Mrs. Currier registered on the night of November 29 and left the hotel the next morning. After a prolonged absence, the hotel management called in the police and her room was searched. A quantity of clothing, a suitcase and handbag were found. All marks of identification had been removed from the clothing. A cameo pin, with the picture of a man and woman on the back was found in a plush lined box.

A sister of Mrs. Currier is supposed to live in Colorado Springs and the theory was advanced by police that she left in search of her and met with foul play. No record of her sister can be found. A bottle of ammonia purchased at a local drug store was found in the room.
